entire "the gunman protested, trying to pull away. "Valentine?" Dowd replied, shoving him into a seat. "I'd know you in a million, Durkin." The prisoner then admitted his identity. Durkin talked freely. He admitted killing Shanahan but denied firing the shots which killed Gray and Austin. "Oh, those fellows were shooting at each other half the time," he said. Durkin related that after his last escape he went to New York and in all returned to Chicago four times. He said he stole automobiles in New York, Detroit and Chicago to make the various trips and finally drove to Cornell where he got Miss Sullivan and drove to East St. Louis.

DEATH OF BABY.

Elizabeth Addie, the ten months' old daughter of Thomas L. and Lovie Laughlin Wright died at the home of her parents in Springfield Wednesday evening, January 20, at 9 o'clock. The child had been ill for several weeks and to determine the cause an X-Ray disclosed that it had a tumor that was evidently congenital, and had been growing larger since birth.

The funeral services will be held at the home in Springfield Friday morning at 8 o'clock. The remains, accompanied by the parents and her aunt, Miss Hermia Laughlin, will be brought to this city for burial.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Toledo—Mrs. C. W. Wiesenbalm was shot and fatally wounded early Wednesday by her husband who mistook her for a burglar.

The woman died at a hospital after exonerating Wiesenbalm, who fired twice into his wife's body.

Wiesenbalm said he heard a noise in his room before dawn and believing a burglar was ransacking his dresser fired point blank.

Lisbon—Mrs. Laura E. Christy, self confessed slayer of two of her eight former husbands, was adjudged insane by a sanity commission here Wednesday afternoon and was ordered committed to the Lima State hospital.

Canton—Discarding the theory that a bootleggers' war was responsible for the murder of Mrs. Michael Eklomovich, 28, police Wednesday afternoon arrested the woman's husband, who denied any connection with the slaying.

Mrs. Eklomovich was shot to death and her skull crushed, apparently with a pistol butt, as she sat in her husband's automobile in front of their apartment.

Toledo—At the request of Coroner Henzler, Vesper K. Orwiler, 50, of Whiteford Corners, was ordered held for further questioning in connection with the murder of Miss Mamie Handley, 42, whose mutilated body was found between two houses here early Wednesday.

Orwiler, according to the police, was the sweetheart of Miss Handley, who was believed to have been a victim of the Toledo clubber, the club wielding fiend who struck down nine women here several weeks ago.

Cincinnati—Defying ultimatum threatening suspension from the American federation of labor, grand executive council of the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers, express and station employees, refused today to drop from their membership 3,000 express company employees.

The federation demanded transfer of these men to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, chauffeurs, stablemen and helpers within 90 days.

REMODELING CRIST BLOCK NORTH COURT

T. M. Barnes, the contractor, has begun operations on the Crist block, North Court street, and will remodel the front of the building for the J. C. Penny company. The show windows will face a vestibule fifteen feet long and the stairways leading to the second floor will be removed as the firm's intention is to use only the ground floor and basement. The second and third floors will be used merely for storage rooms. No data has been set by the firm for its opening, but the building will be occupied as soon as completed.

HIGHER AND SHORTER

According to leading shoe manufacturers, who have just been in convention in Chicago, shoes are to be higher, and they also state that their designers have word from Paris that skirts are to be two inches shorter. Miss Myrtle Gettman is here seen exhibiting the ensemble of boots and skirts as it will be when the two meet. A strap, fastened at the ankle, winds around the boot, and is fastened at the top.

CHRISTMAS SEALS.

The Circleville Benevolent association must make a report on the Christmas Seal sale by the first of February. There are over 200 Seal letters out from which there have been no answer. Will those who have forgotten to pay for their seals, or have forgotten to return them please do at once as the sale must be reported. The association is responsible for all seals sent out, so please return or pay for them. 21Jan3.

WORLD PEACE IS BLOCKED BY MILITARISM

New York Student and Writer Says United States is the Safest Place on Earth.

Columbus, O., Jan. 21 (UP).—The road to permanent world peace is being blocked by the "militarizing of our public school system", thru compulsory military training, Dr. Sherwood Eddy, New York writer and student of world affairs who is attending the Ohio Pastors' association convention believes.

Eddy characterized the United States as the "safest nation in the world," and deplored the spending of vast sums for the development of a war machine.

"The condition here is comparable to that in Japan and Germany before the war," he said. "Throughout the world democracy and materialism are rising tides."

"Dangerous materialism is growing in many parts of the world because the church has failed to meet its opportunity. It has not yet failed in America."

Altho there are many indications of "temporary tyranny" in the world, Dr. Eddy asserted, the world in general has turned toward democracy.

Within another year Russia will be back to normal economic conditions. Many reports on Russia's condition are false, Dr. Eddy said. Russia never "nationalized women" and the "red terror" and the famine that followed the revolution has passed.

China is awakening and turning toward democracy after centuries of repression and will demand the rewriting of scores of unfair treaties forced upon them by the nations, he said.

Referring to World Court, Dr. Eddy said the United States and Russia were the only two nations outside and eventually Russia would join. The last five presidents have urged entrance into such a court, he asserted.

REWARD FOR APREHENSION OF BURGLARS

Two Auto Tires and Flour Taken from Jones Mill Near Williamsport.

The Jones mill south of Williamsport was entered by thieves sometime Tuesday night who broke two locks in gaining entrance to the mill.

Mr. Jones reports that two new automobile tires, about two barrels of flour and probably other articles were stolen from the building. Drawers in the desk were also rifled of their contents.

The opinion of some is that the job was done by local talent or someone else who was familiar with the premises and who knew that the new tires were in the mill.

Sheriff Young was notified of the burglary and an effort will be made to apprehend the thieves. Mr. Jones announced that a reward of $25 would be paid to anyone giving information leading to the arrest of the guilty parties.—Williamsport News.

Cleveland—Joseph H. Vanik, of Cleveland, values his ears at $15,000 according to a suit filed by him against the Cleveland, Ashtabula and Conneaut Bus company.

Vanik alleged that while riding in one of the company's busses from Erie, Pennsylvania, to Ashtabula, the bus became stalled twice and on account of the lack of heat, his ears were frozen.

BURIAL AND FUNERAL EXPENSES

Veterans' Bureau Gives Law on Expenses For the Burial of Veterans of All Wars.

The United States Veterans' Bureau in Regulation 123, recently issued, gives the regulations as to amounts allowed for the burial of veterans of all wars. The regulation is as follows:

By virtue of the authority conferred in section 4 of the World War Veterans' Act, approved June 7, 1924, and pursuant to the retroactive provisions contained in section 201, subsection 1 of the act amendatory thereto, approved March 4, 1925, relative to burial and funeral expenses and transportation of bodies of veterans, the following Regulation is hereby promulgated effective April 6, 1917, cancelling and superseding U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, Nos. 26, 48, 61, 80 and 87, and U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, 1923, sections 8102 to 8113, inclusive, to be incorporated in U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, 1923, as sections 8102 to 8108, inclusive.

Sec. 8102. For the purpose of this regulation (sections 8102 to 8108, inclusive), the term "veteran of any war" shall mean any person who was not dishonorably discharged who dies after discharge or resignation from the service and who served:

(a) In the military or naval forces of the United States during any period of the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War including those persons who served honorably as Army nurses under contracts for ninety days or more, or the World War, or

(b) With forces which were mobilized for participation in the Indian Wars, the Philippine Insurrection, the Boxer Rebellion, Cuban Pacification, Nicaraguan Campaign, Vera Cruz Expedition, or the Punitive Expedition into Mexico. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8103. (1) Where the veteran dies after discharge or resignation from the service while receiving from the Bureau compensation or vocational training a sum not exceeding $100 will be allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, including such transportation of the body as may be necessary, and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket. These expenses may be paid regardless of any assets of the deceased.

(2) For the purpose of this section veterans who die before it is determined whether or not compensation is payable to them and who are subsequently found to be entitled to compensation at the time of death shall be deemed to have died while receiving compensation. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8104. Where a veteran of any war dies away from home while receiving from the Bureau medical, surgical or hospital treatment or vocational training at the place to which he was ordered by the Bureau, or while traveling under orders of the Bureau, a sum not exceeding $100 will be allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket; also for the actual cost of transportation of the body of the deceased (including preparation of the body) to the place of burial within the continental limits of the United States, its territories or possessions. The cost of transporting the body may include a reasonable charge for a suitable and necessary container for shipment, outside box, and any additional expense that may be incurred in order to conform to the regulations of the carrier and the health laws of the State through which the body will pass. There may be also authorized actual and necessary cost of transportation and subsistence of an attendant. Allowance for subsistence shall be limited to actual expenditures but not in excess of that authorized in case of Bureau employees who travel on Government business. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, Effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8105. (1) Where a veteran of any war dies after discharge or resignation from the service and does not leave sufficient assets to meet the expenses of his burial and funeral and the transportation of his body, a sum not exceeding $100 will be allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, including such may be necessary and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket.

(2) For the purpose of this section the amount to be paid by the Bureau will not exceed the difference between any assets left by deceased and the sum of $100, exclusive of flag. Any amounts paid for burial purposes by a State, or other political subdivision, National Soldiers' Home, or other organization, shall be considered as of the same status as assets.

(3) Claims made under section 8105, filed after the date of promulgation of this Regulation, shall be supported by an affidavit of a member of the deceased veterans' family, or other near relative or next friend, or any other person acquainted with the facts, setting forth on "Affidavit Supporting Burial Claims" (Form 536):

(a) Full name, former rank and organization, and term of service of deceased.

(b) Age, place of residence, date, and place of death.

(c) Name and address of undertaker.

(d) Date and place of burial.

(e) The relationship of the affiant relative to the deceased.

(f) All money or property owned by or due and collectible from solvent debtors to the deceased veteran at the time of his death.

(g) Whether or not the deceased was entitled to insurance or death benefits or any allowance by reason or membership in any society or association or other beneficial organization.

(h) Whether or not expenses for burial were entirely or in part paid by a State or other political subdivision or National Military Home or organization.

(4) In addition to the affidavit required by section 8105 (3) there should be furnished for the files of the Bureau, if proof is not already on file, a certified copy of the public record of death, or if such record can not be furnished, proof of death shall be established in accordance with the provisions of section 35 of the Regulations of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

(5) If the body of a deceased veteran is unclaimed and there are no known assets, the amount provided in section 8105 shall be available for burial of the deceased without requirement of the affidavit, Form 536.

(6) In determining the sufficiency of assets for burial and funeral expenses under the provisions of this section the following amounts will not be taken into consideration:

(a) Accrued pension, compensation, and insurance.

(b) Unpaid bonus from the United States, any State or other political subdivision, when not payable to the veterans' estate.

(c) Any unpaid amount under the Adjusted Compensation Act, when not payable to the veteran's estate.

(d) Any and all claims of life insurance on the life of the deceased payable to a designated beneficiary, unless the designated beneficiary took out the policy without having an insurable interest in the life of the insured. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8106. In all cases where a flag is furnished for draping the casket, it shall be given to the next of kin of the deceased veteran, and the next of kin shall be determined according to the laws of the State of residence of the deceased. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8107. For the purpose of sections 8103, 8104, and 8105, the following items and articles will be considered as reasonable expenses of preparation and burial and funeral. Embalming, shaving, washing, and dressing; casket, boxing, undertakers' fees for personal services, hearse, carriages, digging of grave, grave space (except where burial is in a plot owned by the family or relative of the deceased), grave marker, shroud (or clothing in lieu thereof), gloves, shoes, tie, chairs, cremation, candles, crepe, necessary fee for minister or religious services not to exceed $15, necessary fees for watchers not to exceed $10 for each, or a total of $20; necessary fees for pallbearers not to exceed $2 for each, or a total of $12 (such fees as these to be supported by receipts) permits and such other necessary burial and funeral expenses as are reasonable not to exceed the maximum allowed by law.

(2) The allowance provided in sections 8103, 8104, and 8105 hereof, shall apply to the burial transportation of the body as of the veterans mentioned therein, in a National cemetery under the provisions of section 4078 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, when the following conditions have been met:

(a) Such burial is desired by the person or persons entitled to the custody of the body for purposes of interment.

(1) In case the body is unclaimed, officials named in subparagraph (c) when notified will immediately complete arrangements for burial in a National cemetery, and payment of the presented claim may proceed without further consideration regarding the question of assets.

(b) Permission for such burial has been received from the proper officers having jurisdiction over burials in National cemeteries.

(c) Approval is obtained from and all arrangements are made with the regional manager of the region in which the death occurred, or the Medical Officer in Charge, U. S. Veterans' Hospital, Perry Point, Md. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8108. When requested by the person entitled to the custody of the body of a deceased beneficiary of the Bureau, official representation at the funeral shall be granted provided an employee is available for this purpose and that this representation will entail no expense to the Bureau. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)—The National Tribune, Dec. 3, 1925.

WHAT PRICE GLORY?

We do not know whether any one will think that the above caption is appropriate for the article which we are writing, but if there is no glory in the work that this World War veteran has done, there should be.

Miss Gretchen Moeller, a local girl, daughter of the late C. Edmund and Mrs. Elizabeth (Bending) Moeller, was operated upon at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., last Friday morning by Dr. Chas. Mayo, which makes the fifth operation Miss Moeller has undergone since her return from the battle front and her discharge from service as an army nurse.

Gretchen Moeller had fitted herself for her work overseas by a special course at Columbia College and enlisted in the service in June, 1918, when the first call for nurses was received. She served her country as an army nurse, paying her own expenses with the exception of a wage of $1.00 per day which she was given by the Government. At the expiration of the war she was discharged from the army and entered Yale College to complete her course in medicine and this sickness has prevented her finishing her course.

Miss Moeller has been a patient at the above named institution since the 12th day of November last and previous to that she was at this institution for 10 months and underwent two other surgical operations during that time.

Had her health permitted she would have graduated from Yale Medical College, New Haven, Conn., in June, 1924, and completed her interne service in June, 1925. Furthermore, the government makes no provision for compensation to the nurses who served during the war and besides being deprived of her health and the accomplishment of her desires in her chosen work, she is under the expense of her operations and sojourn at the hospital.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF DAUGHTER

Sandusky, Jan. 19.—(UP.)—Crowds jammed common pleas court room here today to hear testimony in the trial of Mary Keller, charged with first degree murder in the death of her 7-year-old daughter Fay Elizabeth, whose body was found near a swamp in the eastern outskirts of the city Nov. 10.

Although police say Mrs. Keller admitted poisoning her child "to save her from a life of poverty like I have had," Attorney James F. Flynn, who volunteered to defend her, declared in court he will show she has the mentality of a child and is not mentally capable of committing murder.

The state contends in the indictment that an ounce of acid was administered and the defense scored a point when the drug clerk who sold four ounces of poison to Mrs. Keller, identified the bottle and declared there is still more than three ounces in the bottle.

Attorney Flynn today received a letter from a Justice of the Peace in Shirley, Ark., inquiring if Mrs. Keller is an heir to Ernest Keller, who died suddenly there and left a considerable estate. Herman Keller, husband of the alleged poisoner, declared he knew of no relative who possessed a large estate.

"BUFFALO BILL'S"

Prized Sparkler Proved To Be a Fake By Jeweler.

Loveland, Colorado, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—Weld county officials are today making a search for a six and one-half carat diamond, formerly owned by "Buffalo Bill" Cody, but now the property of the county, which, it was found yesterday, had been replaced by glass.

The stone was given to Cody by a European monarch. It was one of his prized possessions and adorned his favorite fetish.

With the death of the Indian fighter the jewel became the property of Cody Boal, a nephew. The gem was given a bank as collateral on a loan.

The doors of the bank closed two years ago. Since that time the diamond has reposed in the county vault.

Recently the county decided it had a claim to the jewel through failure of Boal to pay his taxes. Last Friday a Weld county court decided the gem should go to the county and yesterday a bailiff was sent to get it. When he took it to a jeweler he was informed that the rock in a handsome mounting, was "church window glass."

Assets of the bank go on sale today and it is possible there will be further disclosures concerning the noted stone.

OFFICE WASHINGTON USED AS SURVEYOR TO BE SAVED

Steps Taken to Preserve Hut He Used When Surveying Lands for Lord Fairfax.

Richmond, Va.—A neglected scene of George Washington's youthful labors is now coming in for its share of public attention. The little stone office in which he worked for Lord Fairfax will soon become a show spot of Clarke county, Va.

A hundred and seventy-seven years ago George Washington might have been found there any day, figuring busily and poring over outstretched charts and maps. In the neighborhood he made his first acquaintance, as a surveyor, with a country he was later to know as a soldier. Here he became accustomed to hardships and privations such as were to be his lot in the Revolutionary war. The little office is only some sixty miles or so from Washington, D. C. When the young surveyor worked there it was on a wild frontier.

Henry, Lord Fairfax, was once visiting his relative, William Fairfax, when George Washington was present. Lawrence Washington had married William Fairfax's daughter. The great man took a fancy to the boy, just past his seventeenth birthday. Finding in him abilities and attainments beyond his years, he engaged him to survey his vast tracts of land in the rich valley of the Alleghenies.

Washington set out in March, 1748, together with George William Fairfax; and, through Ashley's Gap in the Blue Ridge mountains, the western frontier of inhabited Virginia, they passed into the valley. In the wilderness near the Shenandoah river, about twelve miles from the present town of Winchester, they stopped at a lodge where Lord Fairfax's land bailiff, or steward, dwelt with as many negroes as were necessary to farm the newly cleared land.

This first arduous expedition lasted five weeks, with results of such satisfaction to Lord Fairfax that he himself moved across the Blue Ridge soon afterward, taking up his quarters at the lodge. He laid out a manor for the place, which he called Greenway Court, after his ancestral home in England; but the house was never built. The master himself slept in a wooden structure about twelve feet square. On the lawn near by he built a one-story office, where his deeds were drawn and his quit rents collected. There the boy Washington did his work.

The office had been left largely to the ravages of time and the elements in recent years. But repairs and restoration are now at hand.

A committee has been formed, of which Graham F. Blandly of New York is chairman, to collect funds for reshingling the roof, relaying the floor, enclosing windows and door, replastering the inside and repainting the outside walls. By next spring, it is thought, all will be in readiness for visitors.

Greek and Latin

For many centuries Greek was the classic language in literature, until it was supplanted by Latin. The classic period of Latin literature lasted barely a hundred years. Between the year 100 B. C. and the beginning of the Christian era Cicero, Lucretius, Caesar, Horace, Virgil, Ovid and Livy all lived and wrote and passed away.

Egg and Poultry Societies Thrive

Coöperative Marketing Has Rapidly Developed in Past Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Co-operative marketing of eggs and poultry in the United States has undergone great development in the last 15 years. One hundred and eighty-three farmers' business organizations report handling eggs or poultry or both during 1924. They sold more than 70,000,000 dozens of eggs for approximately $22,000,000. Although only 31 of the 183 organizations were of the truly co-operative type, these 31 handled 90 per cent of the egg business.

Formerly practically all poultry products were sold on a flat price basis. Eggs brought the same price regardless of quality. Poultry, which was usually sold alive, was paid for on the pound basis with little regard to its age or condition. This method, besides offering no inducement to producers to improve the quality of their poultry and eggs, brought about seasonal gluts and shortages.

Improvement Made.

Great improvement was made when poultry producers in various parts of the country adopted co-operative methods of marketing eggs and poultry. These efforts, at first local and primitive, eventually became quite widespread and complex. Large-scale poultry and egg co-operatives have been successfully conducted for a number of years in the Pacific Coast states. Egg and poultry marketing has been organized co-operatively in many states. Considerable attention has been given in the last two or three years to the co-operative method of marketing poultry in Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Utah, Texas, New Mexico, Idaho, Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia. In Minnesota local associations are federated for selling purposes. Elsewhere most of the recently formed associations are of the centralized, nonstock, nonprofit type.

A survey in 1924 showed 31 egg and poultry marketing associations in producing regions, and 4 at terminal markets. Twenty-two of them handled both eggs and poultry. Eight handled only eggs, and one handled only poultry. Missouri, with nine associations, was the state with the largest number; Minnesota was second, with six; California third, with four, and Texas fourth, with three. Five of 29 associations that gave the department information as to when they began operations, were organized before 1920, and the remainder since the beginning of that year.

Co-operative egg marketing was first developed by the present method on the Pacific coast. An association was formed in 1913 in Tulare county, California, with about 100 members. In its first year its sales exceeded $25,000. Last year its sales were nearly $400,000. Poultry producers of central California formed an organization in 1916, and this concern last year had 2,500,000 hens covered by its contracts. Its eggs are carefully graded and handled and are in good demand in Eastern markets. The Poultry Producers of Southern California, Inc., a co-operative organization formed in 1917, handled $7,553 cases of eggs in its first year. Last year it handled 139,000 cases. In 1917 the Washington Co-operative Egg and Poultry association was formed with headquarters at Seattle. This association now handles about 300,000 cases of eggs a year, and its net worth has increased from about $1,000 to $700,000.

Records of Progress.

Similar records of progress in co-operation are cited by the United States Department of Agriculture from information furnished by co-operative egg and poultry associations in most of the other states mentioned. Poultry producers in New Jersey, faced with competition from Pacific coast poultrymen in Eastern markets, formed an association in 1921 with 438 members. After some unfortunate experiences this concern was reorganized in 1923, and last year it handled approximately 70,000 cases of eggs.

Poultry and eggs have been marketed co-operatively in the last ten years through co-operative creameries in Minnesota. This plan is considered ideal for assembling eggs, although it has its limitations in merchandising. So as to develop a better selling organization, Minnesota poultry and egg producers put a plan in operation in 1923 which provided for district organizations federated in a state association. This association, on December 31 last, was selling products from 14,000 members.

Self-Feeders for Calf Not Always Efficient

According to an experiment recently conducted by the dairy department of the South Dakota State college, Brookings, in regard to the efficiency of self-feeders for calves it was found that calves do not select their own rations to the best advantage—they eat too much of the protein feeds and keep themselves too fat. In another experiment as to the value of soy beans for dairy cattle, the results show that ground soy beans make a desirable feed because of their high protein content, but that soy bean hay is not as cheap a legume roughage in South Dakota as alfalfa hay, consequently soy bean hay is recommended as a feed only in localities where alfalfa and clover are not grown.

I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. U. B. CHURCH NOTES.

After a week of special prayer, a series of meetings opened Sunday evening at the United Brethren church, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. S. W. Hiles. He preached a wonderful sermon on the subject "Jesus Christ, Fact and Factor." Although the night was inclement those who braved the element were well repaid in the masterly picture that was drawn of the King of Kings.

Monday night, Rev. A. B. Cox, a former pastor, brought the message. It was the old-time gospel preached in the winning way that has made Rev. Cox many very warm friends in Circleville. Rev. S. W. Hiles preached again Tuesday night; "Jesus Came to See and Save the Lost," because God loved us so. Rev. W. L. Kuhen, of Pickerington, a Circleville boy, that is making good in the sacred calling of the ministry, was with us Monday and Tuesday and will be for several nights to come leading the music and helping whenever he is needed.

There will be meetings each evening this week excepting Saturday. Beginning Monday evening, January 25, Rev. Ludwig of Corning, will assist the pastor. Come out and hear the full gospel. Bring your unsaved friends and neighbors. Come and help Brother Kuhen put the message across in song. Come.

Vital Changes in Season's Fashions

Innovations Which Cannot Be Disregarded Cited by Correspondent.

Third negativism is the complex which seasonably distinguishes the chic from the not so chic. Semiannually it attacks each phase of the mode—couturier and critics and milady herself—and it is the saddest and most reactionary force in fashion. It is the quality which resists progress and attempts to translate radical changes into merely variations of old themes. When you read that the flare is merely a variation of the straight line, that the new elaboration is merely complicated simplicity, you are reading the timorous words of the pussyfooters whose negativistic comments turn daytime into darkness, asserts a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

There are seasons, of course, when the reactionaries ride high in their saddles, when the mode remains motionless and static, when the silhouette changes not a bit and the waist-line rests snugly satisfied with its former habitat or status. You may remember the monotonous iteration of youth, straight line and simplicity in the days when the quiescent meddles of the mode remained in a state of beatific somnolence. Those were the nurturing days of negativism, and they generated a reactionary attitude among the minions of fashion which still persists in many quarters no matter how strong the evidence of progress.

As a matter of fact the mode has completed and is now in process of consummating four vital changes and no woman who aspires to march with fashion's advance guard can afford to disregard any of them. First, the static line has been replaced by the flare—and do you remember the cautions of the standpatters last fall when the hemline flare was first introduced? That was a splendid example of the impending timidity to which we are referring.

Secondly, puerilism, misnamed youth eternal, has been banned from the ranks of the mature where it achieved some grotesque results during the several seasons of its dominance.

Simplicity Passes.

Thirdly, elaboration is now combating simplicity, which has been carried too far and continued too long and while no modern maiden will ever swish through the avenues accompanied by anything like the encumbrances of her Victorian forbears, there is, nevertheless, a distinct trend among the creative spirits of fashion toward greater decoration, particularly in the evening.

Fourthly, a counter move against the overextension of the sports vogue has just been inaugurated, and while you may hear from many sources that the sports mode is the essence of modern fashions, the handwriting on the wall is faint but unmistakably in contradiction. The sensitive leaders of the mode are headed in the direction of greater formality and the smart modern demoiselle will not continue to intrude the sports spirit into formal affairs.

Keep in mind this background when you select your new wardrobe. Inevitably you will see many models which incorporate the passing spirit as well as that which is about to come, and the selection, and your consequent degree of smartness, depend entirely upon your choice. Remember that the day of radical fashion changes is over—that the mode moves now in a subtle and more insidious manner and that it requires far more concentration to foresee and interpret its smartest moods. Where yesterday each new season sponsored a keynote that was easily apparent to all, the slower development of today's mode and the tremendous resistance to every new idea makes modern fashions extremely simple to follow but inordinately difficult to lead.

Among some of the interesting costumes which have already been accepted in Paris is a model contributed by Captain Molyneux, from which you may understand the tendency away from simplicity—consider the details and it will be quite obvious. Here is a dress of brick-red velvet with a collar and cuffs of metallic lace and sleeves which puff from the elbow. Around the nether portion of the flared skirt—which incidentally portrays the swinging silhouette—there are luxurious and ample bands of sable. And the lady carries a muff, a singularly feminine performance.

A Renee Ensemble.

A typical Renee ensemble is not overelaborate and yet it has none of that affected simplicity which characterized the era of the chemise frock. The flare is present but dormant and only becomes assertive when the wearer walks. The dress portion is developed in chestnut brown satin with cloth bands of the same color interspersed. Numerous buttons on sleeves and the front portion of the dress are covered with self-colored satin.

The coat portion of this ensemble is a decidedly more elaborate affair and it expresses the new themes of fashion in a bolder manner. Its flare is flaunting and its elaboration is smart and uncompromising. Compared with the mannish coats one will immediately sense its chic distinction. Developed in brown mixed kasha, it has a luxurious beaver collar, beaver cuffs and sleeve trimming as well as a circular beaver border.

A Chantal model emphasizes the distinctive qualities of the new season. Developed in mustard yellow crepe de chine of the heaviest quality, it is a splendid transition model for the girl who is still faithful to the sports tradition. The skirt flares moderately at the bottom, the waistline is marked and the sleeves puff from the elbow to right before the wrist. The embroidery which appears at the bateau neckline and reappears on shoulders, sleeves, waistline, bodice closing, and around the skirt consists of interlocking rings of the same color as the frock. A dress of this type should be worn over a white slip.

Built-in Elaboration.

The definite formality of the mode du soir is expressed in a Poiret dinner gown. There is an instance of built-in elaboration as distinguished from the elaboration which is imposed by means of trimming and various other appendages. Built-in elaboration is obviously a step in advance of the imposed sort, and it evidences the fact that the evening mode has almost recovered its ancient ornateness. No doubt the Paris Exposition des Arts Decoratifs had a great influence on the new mode, and you will see many instances of its effect in autumn fashions. A Poiret model is developed in black velvet and has an "ancien regime" bustle back formed by huge draperies of velvet which are held in place by diamante crescents. Diamante and pearl bands sound the solitary trimming note.

Have in mind the fledgling themes of fall when you proceed to acquire your costumes and do not be misled by any timorous comments to the effect that the new styles are no different from the old. They are fuller, more feminine and always more ornate, and the chic demoiselle is the lady who will not make concessions on any of these new issues. For smartness is never achieved through compromise.

As usual, Worth's coats and wraps are particularly interesting. He shows them long, three-quarter and semi-three-quarter length and either straight or circular. Some of those which show the newest cut have a godet inset under the arm that widens in a circular movement as it nears the hem, giving a graceful fullness to the skirt. Satin, cloth, kasha, cheviot, burayl and suede are used for these coats and most of them are trimmed with fur. The ensemble plays an important part in this, as in other collections, but the separate wraps are quite as beautiful and practical.

MADRID IS HUB OF MODERN SPAIN

Now Up-to-Date With Little of Traditional Spanish Flavor.

Washington. — A bloodless revolution in Spain! Madrid has just witnessed the passing of the military dictatorship of the last two years, its replacement by the civilian government, and all with the calmness and dispatch of an American business concern recovering from a receivership. "Madrid is, however, a thoroughly modern city, with very little of the traditional flavor of old Spain and with nearly all the luxuries and conveniences of other European and American capitals," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "With a background of fine buildings, wide streets, theaters, educational and scientific institutions, and with automobile roads and railways reaching to every part of the kingdom, it is easier to understand why Madrid should today follow a moderate course in governmental procedure.

Subways and Boulevards.

"Visitors who go by the fast direct trains from Paris to Madrid, and expect to see the colorful costumes and striking architecture one usually associates with the life of the country, are disappointed in Spain's capital city. Madrid's streets swarm with motor trucks and pleasure cars. Underground are two systems of speedy subways, connecting the railroad stations and the principal suburbs of the city. Its boulevards resemble those of Paris and Berlin, with their bordering trees and imposing hotels, public buildings, shops and monuments.

"In place of the poncho and sombrero the visitor will find the tailored suit and straw hat of a hustling business man of the New York stamp. The latest Paris creations make it difficult to distinguish the Spanish senora and senorita from their Latin sisters in Paris, Rome, Havana and Buenos Aires. The languorous strumming of the guitar and the click of the castanets, if they could be found off the stage in Madrid, would today be drowned by the incessant 'whank, whank' of its importunate taxis.

"Madrid is the youngest of the great cities of Spain. It owes its present importance to political creation. Until the middle of the sixteenth century it was an obscure little village of sun-baked adobe houses, clustering around the former Moorish outpost called Madrit. Philip II, seeking at this time a capital for his newly united Spain, rejected one by one the Aragonese city of Saragossa, the Castilian Burgos, the Visigothic Toledo and the Moorish Cordova and Seville. Madrit was in the almost exact geographic center of the kingdom, it had no sectional ties, so Philip declared it the 'Unica Corte,' or Royal Residence, Castilianizing its name to Madrid.

"With hardly any of the natural advantages that contribute to rapid growth, Madrid's early days as a capital were as troublous and uncertain as those of our own national capital. Excepting its central location Madrid was denied by nature of almost every suitable condition for a metropolis. It perched on an elevated steppe in the midst of a vast rolling plateau, bleak and treeless, about a half mile above sea level. Two hundred feet below it winds the insignificant river Manzanares, while the surrounding districts are unproductive, except for small quantities of corn.

"Another element to be reckoned with in Madrid is the climate. Sudden changes of weather often bring great extremes of temperature within a short time.

"The city grew slowly but steadily, stimulated by royal encouragement and subsidy, and gradually began to take a significant part in the life of Spain outside the realm of governmental activities. Madrid's real prosperity and national importance, however, dates from the construction of Spain's railroad systems. It is now the greatest railroad center in the country, and would probably figure as a greater international crossroad if the Spanish lines had the same gauges as those of the rest of Europe.

Spain's Largest City.

"Wealth, industries, and population have come in the wake of the railroads. Madrid, with more than 800,000 residents, is the largest city in Spain. Fine parks have been laid out over barren hills, wide tree-lined streets have pushed into the suburbs to take care of additional homes and buildings. They have done a great deal to take away the impression of barrenness. Some say they have even mitigated the heat of summer.

"From the Puerta del Sol, the Broadway and Forty-second street of Madrid, ten streets radiate, carrying a network of surface and subway lines to every part of the city. Less than half a mile away is the 'Prado,' a boulevard lined with fine buildings, and from five to eight rows of trees. Along this promenade, which is one of the 'show streets' of the world, is the museum of the same name, containing a collection of art which rivals that of the Louvre.

"Madrid also has one of the largest bull rings in the world. The 'Plaza de Toros,' modeled after the Roman colosseum, seats 14,000 people. Bull fighting, however, has fallen from its high estate in Spain today, and spectators are, for the most part, the sporting element and American tourists."

SPORT WITH A TRAVELING HUNTING LODGE

USE OF DIMMER IS NOT FAVORED

Motor Code to Provide 200-Foot Visibility Is Urged by Bureau.

Amendments to motor-vehicle laws, in states which have not already revised their codes, to regulate night driving headlights so that at all times the motorist is able to see clearly 200 feet ahead instead of forcing the use of dimmers, characterized as dangerous, is urged by the federal bureau of standards of the Department of Commerce. Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan fall into the group of states that compel dimmed lights by passing motorists on highways, a practice which the bureau scientists condemn as dangerous, not alone to the drivers but to pedestrians as well.

Spotlight Is Favored.

The spotlight, excoriated in and around Chicago, is recommended, with proper study of its use. Most of the eastern states, as well as states west of Illinois, including Wisconsin, have adopted this apparently revolutionary headlight recommendation. In the District of Columbia where it has been in effect since May 3, night motor accidents occurred between dusk and dawn. Since adoption of the "ample driving light" standard, with directed beams instead of dimmed lamps, the number has been reduced to 23 per cent.

Opposes Dimming in Country.

The whole story, according to E. C. Crittenden, chief of the electrical division of the big government experiment station, lies in intelligent use of modern devices. He makes no choice between various makes of motor headlights now on the market, one type of which uses a plane reflector with redirecting lenses, the other employing a special reflector with lenses that spread or bend the light rays downward.

"For country driving," says a part of the bureau's publication on headlights, "dimming the headlights when meeting another car should be discouraged because of the element of danger involved. Under normal driving conditions the driver's eyes are adjusted for good road illumination. When the lights are dimmed, suddenly reducing the road light, a few seconds must elapse before the eyes can readjust themselves to the new conditions. During these few seconds the driver is unable to see clearly and may collide with the oncoming car, run into pedestrians walking along the roadside or get off the road into the ditch. In addition, the lights on the approaching car seem unduly bright because no road illumination beyond them is available to reduce the contrast with the background."

How to Warm Up a Motor During Winter Season

"Serious damage is done to many automobiles during the winter season by drivers who do not know how to warm up the motor," says a bulletin issued by the mechanical first aid department of the Chicago Motor club. When the thermometer starts to drop the oil congeals, and cannot circulate properly. If the driver attempts to warm his engine by racing the motor, the thin film of oil is likely to be burned off, and burned out bearings may be the result of this common practice.

"When the engine is being raced, the fan is being driven at a high rate of speed which tends to cool the engine, rather than to heat it. The engine should be run slowly with the spark retarded. A retarded spark tends to heat the engine quickly. Use the choke or the primer to keep the engine from stalling."

Several Reasons Why It Is Expensive to Speed

The driver who persists in operating his motor car at high speed may elude constables and police, says a writer in the Farm and Fireside, but he cannot escape from the penalties which natural mechanical laws levy upon his car. Here are ten reasons why it is expensive, dangerous and inconsiderate of others to speed.

Tires last about twice as long on a car that is driven at 15 miles an hour as upon cars driven at 30 miles an hour. Speeding generates heat, which is an enemy to rubber.

Driving a car around a sharp corner at 25 miles an hour does more damage to the tires than 200 miles of straight road work. Excessive side pressure on tires may pinch the tubes, and it always strains the side walls of the casings.

High speeds are likely to cause skidding and breakage of springs and steering gear, any of which are dangerous when speeding.

In proportion to the mileage obtained, high speeds require more gasoline and oil than a moderate rate of traveling.

Driving a car at excessive speed, especially over rough roads, subjects the bearings to enormous strains.

High speed may cause crystallization of rapidly moving metal parts that are subject to strain, and these may break at any time without warning.

High speeds interfere with the accuracy of steering, as is shown by the number of reckless drivers who have gone over banks and into ditches, especially on curves.

It is a strain on the eyes and the nerves of the driver and also of the other passengers in the car.

Finally, it is a menace to the pleasure and safety of others who use the road.

The majority of modern motor cars develop their maximum efficiency with lowest expense at speeds ranging from 15 to 25 miles an hour, depending on the make of car and conditions of the road.

Shutters on Radiators Kept Closed Too Long

The most important precaution to take in operating a motor car during the winter is to avoid loss of fuel and injury to the engine through the improper co-ordination between the radiator shutter and the radiator heat indicator.

Many drivers keep their shutters closed too long in winter driving because they neglect to observe the reading of the heat indicator on the radiator cap. This lack of co-ordination causes overheating of the engine, as easily possible in the winter as in the summer months, with its consequent wastage of fuel and loss of power.

On the other hand, if too little of the radiator is covered, the engine will be too cool and there will be resultant poor carburization, gasoline waste, crankcase dilution and motor carbonizing.

Steaming, which often indicates trouble in winter, cannot be detected easily in winter, as the steam condenses as soon as it comes in contact with the cold air and therefore the readings of the heat indicator must be relied upon.

Headlight Glasses Must Be Kept in Right Place

Some of the light diffusers or devices designed to redirect the rays of light, are designed to be effective only when in a certain fixed position. Vibration may so loosen the glass in the rim that the glass will be permitted to creep around, in which case the whole scheme fails. Not all headlights have means for anchoring the glass permanently, so it is a matter for the owner's attention to see that the glasses are properly fastened in place. If screws are used it might do to insert a lock washer under each one.

GREAT BOOKS.

A series of talks being given by one of Circleville's ministers at his Sunday evening services during January should certainly inspire Circleville readers to read or reread some of these great novels. So much criticism is expressed nowadays for the types of books being published that it should be a joy to turn to those books, which have proved so much worth while to generations of readers, as well as to one quite recent novel, which has been chosen to stand with the other older volumes.

So far, the talks given have been on "Les Miserable," "The Resurrection," "The Scarlet Letter," with "The Mill on the Floss" and "So Big" to come later.

BANK ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Farmers National bank stockholders held January 12, the following were elected directors: F. D. Alkire, H. W. Campbell, George Hamman, C. W. Hays, G. P. Hunsicker, C. K. Hunsicker, L. J. Hurst, H. G. McGhee, E. C. Rector, Frank Schleich, John W. Stewart and Charles D. Wright.

The following were reelected officers: G. P. Hunsicker, president; H. G. McGhee, vice president; Formen J. Peck, cashier; J. L. Hunsicker, assistant cashier and Mrs. Edna Newhouse, bookkeeper.

This is the thirty-fifth year as a banker for G. P. Hunsicker. He started as cashier of the Farmers bank, on December 22, 1891. — Williamsport News.

"NOISE IT ABROAD"

Brought to attention by the visit of the Rev. Mr. J. S. Bitler, after an absence of over forty years, a book written by a former minister of Circleville has "stepped out" from its place on the shelves of the Circleville Public library. This book is "Noise It Abroad" by Rev. C. F. Creighton and is an account of the great Bitler revival held in Circleville in 1885. Probably there are many copies of this book in the home of our town and it supplies an interesting contribution to the material on the times and events, which have gone to make up our local history.

PNEUMONIA DEATH RATE CUT DOWN

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

PNEUMONIA is one of the commonest and most fatal diseases. It is also the most important disease in the so-called "Respiratory Group" which, so far, modern science has been unable to prevent.

While pneumonia is more prevalent in the early spring and late fall, it occurs practically all the year round. In rural districts, in small towns, and large cities. It is particularly prevalent in old age; in fact, some medical authorities say that pneumonia is the natural termination of the life of the old person.

Those diseases caused by polluted water, such as cholera, typhoid fever and dysentery, and those carried by insects, such as yellow fever, typhus fever and malaria, have been very largely controlled. But the respiratory group, including pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza, and probably some forms of meningitis, is, so far as our present knowledge and methods go, beyond control.

If a disease cannot be prevented, the next best thing is to cure it as quickly and completely as possible.

But here again difficulties arise. Many different forms of serums and vaccines for the treatment of pneumonia have been proposed in the last twenty years. None of them has given satisfactory results. The New York City Health department, however, has announced the perfection of a new substance for the treatment of pneumonia which, it is hoped, will cut the death rate from 25 to 50 per cent.

This substance was discovered by Dr. Lloyd D. Felton of the department of preventive medicine of Harvard Medical school. It is a white, crystalline powder which Doctor Felton extracted from ordinary horse serum which has been used quite widely in the past in the treatment of influenza. It has been used in the treatment of 120 pneumonia patients without the slightest unfavorable effect. It is apparently free from the substances in other serums which sometimes cause chills, fever and other bodily manifestations.

The discovery of this substance is the result of five years of research and experimental work, inaugurated by Doctor Felton with the support of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company after the widespread influenza epidemic of 1918.

It is, of course, too early to make any definite statements regarding the value of this discovery, but the conditions under which the substance has been produced, the long period devoted to experimental work, and the results secured by the Boston and New York City Health departments all lead to the hope that it may prove an effective addition to present methods of treating pneumonia and to the reduction of the high mortality rate which has always prevailed in this disease. HARTMAN THEATER.

Hailed as one of the best musical revues ever assembled, the new edition of "Artists and Models" opens a week's engagement at the Hartman theater Columbus, Monday night, January 25. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This marks the first booking of this famous Shubert Revue in Columbus. It ran all last season in New York.

The list of stars reads like a page from "Who's Who in Revue." Among the entertainers are Grace Haves, the quivering angel of jazz songs; Fred Hillebrand, the lanky comedian; Nancy Gibb, the prima donna; Lucita Covera, the Spanish dancer and Dave Seed, the monkey comic.

DeHaven and Nice add a riot of laughs with their travesty dancing. Frank Gaby steps into the spotlight with his ventriloquist bit and Alex Morrison contributes a novelty with his golf scene. Valadia Vestoff appears in eccentric Russian dances.

Fifty beautiful artists' models reveal their charms in the posing scenes and musical numbers. Those girls were recruited from the foremost studios of Greenwich Village and the collection includes blondes, brunettes, ravens and Titians. In the episodes of "The Living Statues" and "The Living Palette," they wear "elephant's breath" chiffon, a new stage fabric so light in weight that the entire costume is carried in a silver vanity case.

Scenic features of "Artists and Models" include the Promenade walk, the Midnight Color Ball, the rose ballet the New Hampshire wood, and a comedy skit entitled "Truth in China."

The music is by Sigmund Romberg, Al Goodman and Maurie Rubens. Some of the song hits are "You Ought to Know," "My Lady's Fan," "Oh, Boy What a Girl," "Good Night" and "Follow Your Star."

JOHN DUVAL DODGE

Lost His Suit For Share of Large Estate.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—(UP.)—John Duval Dodge, estranged son of the late John Dodge, automobile magnate, today lost his suit for a share in the $7,500,000 estate of his half-sister, Ann Margaret Dodge.

By ruling of Probate Judge Henry S. Hulbert, young Dodge was granted only a one-fifth interest in real estate holdings, or approximately $1,276. His contested right to share in personal property valued at more than $7,500,000 was denied, Judge Hulbert holding it should pass to Matilda R. Wilson, his step-mother.

In the will of John F. Dodge, his son was cut off with $150 a month but under a compromise agreement he later was given $1,600,000 by other heirs in return for relinquishing claims against the estate.

Lesson for January 24

JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

LESSON TEXT—John 4:4-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation.—Isa. 12:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus by the Well.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus by Jacob's Well.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Sinful Woman Finds the Savior.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Jesus Deals With Sinners.

I. Jesus Must Needs Go Through Samaria (vv. 4-6).

The growing popularity of Jesus aroused the envious opposition of the Pharisees, which obliged Him to leave Judea and go into Samaria. There was another way to reach Galilee, one used by many Jews to avoid contact with the despised Samaritans, on the eastern side of the Jordan. He must "needs go through Samaria" in order to find this poor sinful woman and the needy citizens of Sychar. The great necessity which was upon Him was to seek and to save that which was lost (Luke 19:10).

II. Jesus' Testimony to the Woman (vv. 7-26).
This is a fine example of personal evangelism.

1. A Favor Asked (vv. 7-9).

Jesus tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. Not only did the thirst of the weary traveler appeal to her, but the fact that He being a Jew asked a favor of her, showed His sympathy for her. In introducing the conversation, He referred to that which was uppermost in her mind, namely, water. This was the teacher's point of contact. He soon passed from earthly water to the water of everlasting life which was in Himself. Every human mind has a handle. Our success as Christian workers depends upon our ability to grasp and use it.

2. Jesus' Tender Dealing With This Woman (vv. 10-15).

He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring, "If thou knewest the gift of God" (v. 10). He knew the deep unrest of the soul of the sinful woman as she went on her way. He knew if she really knew Him she would believe on Him and be saved from her sins, therefore the first thing was to get attention. When we can get one to give attention to the claims of Christ, there is good chance of winning him. He followed this appeal to her curiosity by a promise which directed her attention to her deepest needs. There is a consciousness of deep need in every soul. The deepest need of a soul Jesus only can satisfy.

3. The Woman, Convicted of Her Sins (vv. 15-19).

Jesus succeeded in arousing her interest, but she did not really understand Him. Before she could understand what the Water of Life is, she must be convicted of her sin. She did not agree with Him, but became a humble inquirer. The soul must be convicted of sin before it can be converted.

4. The Problem of Worship Submitted to Christ (vv. 20-24).

This she did as soon as she perceived Him to be a prophet. Jesus knowing the inner life of this woman, told her of the glad time even then present when true worshippers could hold intercourse with God anywhere. He showed her that the place of worship is unimportant, that the all-important thing is to have the true conception of God as brought through the Jews. Since worship is spiritual, only those who have been regenerated can worship God in spirit.

5. The Woman of Samaria Witnessing for Christ (vv. 27-30).

The woman left her water pot and returning to the city said, "Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did. Is not this the Christ?" As soon as she was converted she became an enthusiastic missionary. This is as it ought to be and always will be. The soul that realizes Jesus cannot be silent (John 1:41-45). The result of her testimony was that many believed on Jesus.

III. Jesus Testifying to the Citizens of Sychar (vv. 40, 41).

The woman's testimony brought the request from the Samaritans that Jesus tarry with them. He abode with them two days. Though they heard the woman's testimony, they believed because of Christ's own word (v. 41).

IV. The Samaritans Witnessing for Christ (v. 42).

They declared, "We know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world." They confessed to the woman that their belief was not due to her testimony but to having heard Him themselves, that they were sure that He was the Messiah.

MONDAY CLUB MEETING WAS INTERESTING

Mrs. Carl Ritz Gave Review
of George Bernard Shaw's
Drama, "Saint Joan."

One of the best meetings ever held by the Monday club in its thirty-five years of existence was that of Monday night, January 18. The program was short, there being only one topic discussed. This was a review of George Bernard Shaw's remarkable drama, "Saint Joan," which was ably taken up by Mrs. Carl Ritz. Mrs. Ritz introduced the study by giving briefly a thoughtful critique of Shaw's motives and methods in writing the play and stated that she believed the author had been honest in his endeavor to portray the character of the Maid of Orleans as he saw it. Mrs. Ritz brought to the task of the interpretation of the drama a scholarly mind, a trained voice and a thorough knowledge of dramatic values in literature. After dipping into Shaw's ninety-seven page preface, she read some of the most effective portions of play itself. And while her audience may or may not have been in sympathy with Shaw's conception of the historic character, Joan of Arc, judging from the rapt attention paid the reading there could be no question as to the unanimous approval of the club regarding the masterly interpretation of the play by Mrs. Ritz.

At the close of the program the club went into a prolonged business session. A number of questions pertaining to club activities were taken up, among them the coming year's work. After this had been discussed at some length, the proposed new code of by-laws was voted on, being presented, section by section by Mrs. C. E. Groce, chairman of the committee having in charge the revision of the constitution and by-laws.

"THE ROSE MAIDEN"

A very interesting crowd of local artists met at the community house of the U. B. church Wednesday evening and took part in the first rehearsal of "Rose Maiden," the cantata the Business & Professional Women's club is sponsoring and which Mrs. Winters, of Portsmouth, a very charming and accomplished woman, is directing.

The next rehearsal will be held at the community house Friday evening and it is asked that all those consenting to sing in the cantata will find it possible to be present at that time.

Poor Man's Luck

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union)

CONGREVE looked at the revolver in his desk drawer and pushed it away with a little laugh. Not that way for him! He was only forty-three, and the millions that he had lost in the last week he could make again, and more.

But he could not regain Virginia Templeton. He knew that she was lost forever, and a month before their wedding.

That was the cursed part of the luck, he thought, as he made his way out in the train toward the Templeton estate. Old Templeton had been in a bad way when, out of friendship, Congreve had taken hold of his affairs, showed him some wise investments, and rebuilt his affairs for him. Templeton had invited him to his fine home in the country, and there Congreve had met Virginia.

There had been a host of men after her—young Winters especially. Congreve had always suspected that Virginia was in love with Winters. Certainly he admitted to himself that Virginia had never really cared for him. She was marrying him because—well, not for his money, but because he had saved her father from bankruptcy.

After all, Congreve reflected cynically, one got nothing for nothing in this world. He wanted Virginia, with her cold, stately beauty. She wanted to do the right thing. Oh, yes, he was the right thing.

He had been sure that young Winters had kissed her that night in the conservatory. He had said nothing about it. Why should he? He had all the tolerance of a man of forty-three who is about to marry a charming girl. Suppose she did not care for Winters? How long would it last?

But now—as he descended at the station—now it was all different. Now he clenched his fists and gritted his teeth as he reflected how Winters would get her after all. How they would laugh at him, all her friends who had never really admitted him into their circle!

And old Templeton—how rejoiced he would be to kick down the ladder by which he had ascended to those heights of financial salvation!

Congreve strode savagely up the lane toward the house. He was going to make no bones about the matter. He meant to come to the point. "I'm all but bankrupt," he was going to tell Templeton. To Virginia—well, he would not be harsh with the girl. One did not take it out on women. A few words, showing her that he understood.

It was beginning to grow dark as the house came into sight. Congreve, about to ascend the steps and knock at the front door, hesitated. There was a light in the little room at the side. In it he saw Virginia's figure silhouetted against the drawn shade. The window was open. Congreve could hear every word uttered by her and the man with her.

"It's true, Virgy," the man was saying—and it was Winters' voice. "The fellow's a bankrupt. The news is all over town. Now we've got him where we want him."

"Where do we want him?" asked Virginia.

"Somewhere where he can't interfere between you and me, sweetheart."

"Aren't you assuming too much?"

"I guess not." He made a little movement toward her. The girl stepped back.

"Listen, Ronald. Ever since Harry and I became engaged you and everybody assumed that I was marrying him for his money. It wasn't said aloud—oh, no, but the sense was conveyed none the less deftly for all that. It paralyzed me. It made an automaton of me. Because you see, I—love him."

"Nonsense, Virgy!"

"I love him. And now that all his money is gone, perhaps I shall have the chance of showing him that it was he himself and not his money, and that I do care for him."

"And as for you, Ronald, I don't want to see you again. Please go. That's all."

As Congreve stood there aghast the door opened and Winters brushed past him with an agitated face. But Congreve hardly noticed him. There stood Virginia. And one glance at his face told her he had overheard.

"Yes, I heard you, Virginia," said Congreve. And he drew her into his arms.

"I guess the loss of my money was the best thing that could have happened to us. It's given us love," he said.

"The love was always there," said Virgy softly.

Colon Gone Wrong

A teacher of English was sorely afflicted with conditions that seemed to mean a surgical operation. One examination after another, with the X-ray liberally applied, finally disclosed the source of the pain.

"You have no disease in your appendix," said her medical advisor, "nor elsewhere that I can discover, except in your colon."

"Dear me!" she exclaimed. "Here I have been wrestling all my life with commas and periods and semicolons only to be told, at my age, that my colon has gone wrong."

FAMOUS PHANTOM GUNMAN CAPTURED

JIU JITSU METHOD USED IN STATEROOM OF TRAIN

Run to Earth at Last On Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Train As It Was Entering St. Louis, Mo.—Tip From San Francisco Leads to His Capture—Is Wanted In Chicago For Killing a Department of Justice Operative.

Trained three months by department of justice agents, one of whose number he had slain, Martin J. Durkin, 26, notorious Chicago criminal, was captured at St. Louis, Missouri, Wednesday.

The much-sought slayer, described in police circulars as "very dangerous, quick to draw," fell into a trap prepared by department agents, city detectives and railroad employees and was overpowered in the drawing room of a Frisco-Katy train upon arrival at Webster Groves, a suburb, from San Antonio.

A revolver, an automatic pistol and a belt of cartridges were lying on a card table in the drawing room.

"I would have shot it out with you if you had given me a chance," Durkin told his captors. "You got me too quick."

With Durkin was an attractive woman, his bride since December 4. They were married in East St. Louis. She said she formerly was Miss Irma Sullivan, 18, of Cornell, Illinois, and had no idea her husband was wanted by the police. She did not become suspicious, she said, until he abandoned an automobile at San Antonio.

Durkin, who gave his name as James Durkin of St. Louis in applying for the marriage license, has been variously called the "sheik robber" and "Prince Charming." He continued to smile after his arrest and nonchalantly admitted his desperate escapades. It was noticed he had shaved his tiny mustache since leaving Chicago.

The couple waived extradition and was taken under heavy guard on a Chicago and Alton train leaving for Chicago.

Durkin is charged with the murder of Edward C. Shanahan, department of justice operative, who was shot to death at Chicago last October 11, when he attempted to arrest Durkin for automobile theft. He also is charged with murder of Police Sergeant Harry Gray, who was fatally wounded October 29, when he trapped Durkin in a Chicago house, only to have Durkin shoot his way out. Lloyd Austin, a civilian was killed in the exchange of bullets.

The capture of Durkin was accomplished neatly. Durkin and his bride had been trailed by government agents thru an automobile license from East St. Louis to Los Angeles and then to San Antonio, where he engaged a drawing room on the train for St. Louis, to obtain employment.

Three traps were arranged in and around St. Louis, one at Webster Groves. H. L. Scott, James J. McLaughlin and Edward Dowd of the department of justice and 15 city detectives, crack shots of the department, went to the outlying station.

As the train pulled in at 11:05 a. m. four detectives took positions on either side and the others boarded the coaches.

Dowd knocked on the drawing room door. It swung open and Durkin stood before them.

Detective Sergeant Leonard Ising, a wrestler and expert in jiu-jitsu, sprang at the fugitive and clamped a wristlock on his right arm. Dowd seized him around the waist and both began to drag him from the room.

"Durkin, we've got you," Dowd said. "We've got you at last."

"You've made a mistake. I'm Valentine," the gunman protested, trying to pull away.

"Valentine?" Dowd replied, shoving him into a seat. "I'd know you in a million, Durkin."

The prisoner then admitted his identity.

Durkin talked freely. He admitted killing Shanahan but denied firing the shots which killed Gray and Austin.

"Oh, those fellows were shooting at each other half the time," he said.

Durkin related that after his last escape he went to New York and in all returned to Chicago four times. He said he stole automobiles in New York, Detroit and Chicago to make the various trips and finally drove to Cornell where he got Miss Sullivan and drove to East St. Louis.

Elizabeth Addie, the ten months' old daughter of Thomas L. and Lovie Laughlin Wright died at the home of her parents in Springfield Wednesday evening, January 20, at 9 o'clock. The funeral services will be held at the home in Springfield Friday morning at 8 o'clock. The remains, accompanied by the parents and her aunt, Miss Hermia Laughlin, will be brought to this city for burial.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Toledo—Mrs. C. W. Wiesenbalm was shot and fatally wounded early Wednesday by her husband who mistook her for a burglar.

The woman died at a hospital after exonerating Wiesenbalm, who fired twice into his wife's body.

Wiesenbalm said he heard a noise in his room before dawn and believing a burglar was ransacking his dresser fired point blank.

Lisbon—Mrs. Laura E. Christy, self confessed slayer of two of her eight former husbands, was adjudged insane by a sanity commission here Wednesday afternoon and was ordered committed to the Lima State hospital.

Canton—Discarding the theory that a bootleggers' war was responsible for the murder of Mrs. Michael Eklomovich, 28, police Wednesday afternoon arrested the woman's husband, who denied any connection with the slaying.

Mrs. Eklomovich was shot to death and her skull crushed, apparently with a pistol butt, as she sat in her husband's automobile in front of their apartment.

Toledo—At the request of Coroner Henzler, Vesper K. Orwiler, 50, of Whiteford Corners, was ordered held for further questioning in connection with the murder of Miss Mamie Handley, 42, whose mutilated body was found between two houses here early Wednesday.

Orwiler, according to the police, was the sweetheart of Miss Handley, who was believed to have been a victim of the Toledo clubber, the club wielding fiend who struck down nine women here several weeks ago.

Cincinnati — Defying ultimatum threatening suspension from the American federation of labor, grand executive council of the brotherhood of railway and steamship clerks, freight handlers, express and station employees, refused today to drop from their membership 3,000 express company employees.

The federation demanded transfer of these men to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, chauffeurs, stablemen and helpers within 90 days.

WORLD PEACE IS BLOCKED BY MILITARISM

New York Student and Writer Says United States is the Safest Place on Earth.

Columbus, O., Jany. 21 (UP).—The road to permanent world peace is being blocked by the "militarizing of our public school system", thru compulsory military training, Dr. Sherwood Eddy, New York writer and student of world affairs who is attending the Ohio Pastors' association convention believes.

Eddy characterized the United States as the "safest nation in the world," and deplored the spending of vast sums for the development of a war machine.

"The condition here is comparable to that in Japan and Germany before the war," he said. "Thruout the world democracy and materialism are rising tides."

"Dangerous materialism is growing in many parts of the world because the church has failed to meet its opportunity. It has not yet failed in America."

Altho there are many indications of "temporary tyranny" in the world, Dr. Eddy asserted, the world in general has turned toward democracy.

Within another year Russia will be back to normal economic conditions. Many reports on Russia's condition are false, Dr. Eddy said. Russia never "nationalized women" and the "red terror" and the famine that followed the revolution has passed.

China is awakening and turning toward democracy after centuries of repression and will demand the rewriting of scores of unfair treaties forced upon them by the nations, he said.

Referring to World Court, Dr. Eddy said the United States and Russia were the only two nations outside and eventually Russia would join. The last five presidents have urged entrance into such a court, he asserted.

REWARD FOR APREHENSION OF BURGLARS

Two Auto Tires and Flour Taken from Jones Mill Near Williamsport.

The Jones mill south of Williamsport was entered by thieves sometime Tuesday night who broke two locks in gaining entrance to the mill.

Mr. Jones reports that two new automobile tires, about two barrels of flour and probably other articles were stolen from the building. Drawers in the desk were also rifled of their contents.

The opinion of some is that the job was done by local talent or someone else who was familiar with the premises and who knew that the new tires were in the mill.

Sheriff Young was notified of the burglary and an effort will be made to apprehend the thieves. Mr. Jones announced that a reward of $25 would be paid to anyone giving information leading to the arrest of the guilty parties.—Williamsport News.

Cleveland—Joseph H. Vanik, of Cleveland, values his ears at $15,000 according to a suit filed by him against the Cleveland, Ashtabula and Conneaut Bus company.

Vanik alleged that while riding in one of the company's busses from Erie, Pennsylvania, to Ashtabula, the bus became stalled twice and on account of the lack of heat, his ears were frozen.

BURIAL AND FUNERAL EXPENSES

Veterans' Bureau Gives Law on Expenses For the Burial of Veterans of All Wars.

The United States Veterans' Bureau in Regulation 123, recently issued, gives the regulations as to amounts allowed for the burial of veterans of all wars. The regulation is as follows:

By virtue of the authority conferred in section 4 of the World War Veterans' Act, approved June 7, 1924, and pursuant to the retroactive provisions contained in section 201, subsection 1 of the act amendatory thereto, approved March 4, 1925, relative to burial and funeral expenses and transportation of bodies of veterans, the following Regulation is hereby promulgated effective April 6, 1917, cancelling and superseding U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, Nos. 26, 48, 61, 80 and 87, and U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, 1923, sections 8102 to 8113, inclusive, to be incorporated in U. S. Veterans' Bureau Regulations, 1923, as sections 8102 to 8108, inclusive.

Sec. 8102. For the purpose of this regulation (sections 8102 to 8108, inclusive), the term "veteran of any war" shall mean any person who was not dishonorably discharged who dies after discharge or resignation from the service and who served:

(a) In the military or naval forces of the United States during any period of the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War including those persons who served honorably as Army nurses under contracts for ninety days or more, or the World War, or

(b) With forces which were mobilized for participation in the Indian Wars, the Philippine Insurrection, the Boxer Rebellion, Cuban Pacification, Nicaraguan Campaign, Vera Cruz Expedition, or the Punitive Expedition into Mexico. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8103. (1) Where the veteran dies after discharge or resignation from the service while receiving from the Bureau compensation or vocational training a sum not exceeding $100 will be allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, including such transportation of the body as may be necessary, and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket. These expenses may be paid regardless of any assets of the deceased.

(2) For the purpose of this section veterans who die before it is determined whether or not compensation is payable to them and who are subsequently found to be entitled to compensation at the time of death shall be deemed to have died while receiving compensation. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8104. Where a veteran of any war dies away from home while receiving from the Bureau medical, surgical or hospital treatment or vocational training at the place to which he was ordered by the Bureau, or while traveling under orders of the Bureau, a sum not exceeding $100 will be allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket; also for the actual cost of transportation of the body of the deceased (including preparation of the body) to the place of burial within the continental limits of the United States, its territories or possessions. The cost of transporting the body may include a reasonable charge for a suitable and necessary container for shipment, outside box, and any additional expense that may be incurred in order to conform to the regulations of the carrier and the health laws of the State through which the body will pass. There may be also authorized actual and necessary cost of transportation and subsistence of an attendant. Allowance for subsistence shall be limited to actual expenditures but not in excess of that authorized in case of Bureau employees who travel on Government business. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, Effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8105. (1) Where a veteran of any war dies after discharge or resignation from the service and does not leave sufficient assets to meet the expenses of his burial and funeral and the transportation of his body, a sum not exceeding $100 will be hereof, shall apply to the burial transportation of the body as allowed for actual burial and funeral expenses, including such may be necessary and, in addition, not to exceed $7 for furnishing a flag to drape the casket.

(2) For the purpose of this section the amount to be paid by the Bureau will not exceed the difference between any assets left by deceased and the sum of $100, exclusive of flag. Any amounts paid for burial purposes by a State, or other political subdivision, National Soldiers' Home, or other organization, shall be considered as of the same status as assets.

(3) Claims made under section 8105, filed after the date of promulgation of this Regulation, shall be supported by an affidavit of a member of the deceased veterans' family, or other near relative or next friend, or any other person acquainted with the facts, setting forth on "Affidavit Supporting Burial Claims" (Form 536):

(a) Full name, former rank and organization, and term of service of deceased.

(b) Age, place of residence, date, and place of death.

(c) Name and address of undertaker.

(d) Date and place of burial.

(e) The relationship of the affiant relative to the deceased.

(f) All money or property owned by or due and collectible from solvent debtors to the deceased veteran at the time of his death.

(g) Whether or not the deceased was entitled to insurance or death benefits or any allowance by reason or membership in any society or association or other beneficial organization.

(h) Whether or not expenses for burial were entirely or in part paid by a State or other political subdivision or National Military Home or organization.

(4) In addition to the affidavit required by section 8105 (3) there should be furnished for the files of the Bureau, if proof is not already on file, a certified copy of the public record of death, or if such record can not be furnished, proof of death shall be established in accordance with the provisions of section 35 of the Regulations of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau.

(5) If the body of a deceased veteran is unclaimed and there are no known assets, the amount provided in section 8105 shall be available for burial of the deceased without requirement of the affidavit. Form 536.

(6) In determining the sufficiency of assets for burial and funeral expenses under the provisions of this section the following amounts will not be taken into consideration:

(a) Accrued pension, compensation, and insurance.

(b) Unpaid bonus from the United States, any State or other political subdivision, when not payable to the veterans' estate.

(c) Any unpaid amount under the Adjusted Compensation Act, when not payable to the veteran's estate.

(d) Any and all claims of life insurance on the life of the deceased payable to a designated beneficiary, unless the designated beneficiary took out the policy without having an insurable interest in the life of the insured. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

Sec. 8106. In all cases where a flag is furnished for draping the casket, it shall be given to the next of kin of the deceased veteran, and the next of kin shall be determined according to the laws of the State of residence of the deceased. (V. B. Regulation No. 123, effective April 6, 1917.)

(a) Such burial is desired by the person or persons entitled to the custody of the body for purposes of interment.

(1) In case the body is unclaimed, officials named in subparagraph (c) when notified will immediately complete arrangements for burial in a National cemetery, and payment of the presented claim may proceed without further consideration regarding the question of assets.

WHAT PRICE GLORY?

We do not know whether any one will think that the above caption is appropriate for the article which we are writing, but if there is no glory in the work that this World War veteran has done, there should be.

Miss Gretchen Moeller, a local girl, daughter of the late C. Edmund and Mrs. Elizabeth (Bending) Moeller, was operated upon at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., last Friday morning by Dr. Chas. Mayo, which makes the fifth operation Miss Moeller has undergone since her return from the battle front and her discharge from service as an army nurse.

Gretchen Moeller had fitted herself for her work overseas by a special course at Columbia College and enlisted in the service in June, 1918, when the first call for nurses was received. She served her country as an army nurse, paying her own expenses with the exception of a wage of $1.00 per day which she was given by the Government. At the expiration of the war she was discharged from the army and entered Yale College to complete her course in medicine and this sickness has prevented her finishing her course.

Miss Moeller has been a patient at the above named institution since the 12th day of November last and previous to that she was at this institution for 10 months and underwent two other surgical operations during that time.

Had her health permitted she would have graduated from Yale Medical College, New Haven, Conn., in June, 1924, and completed her interne service in June, 1925. Furthermore, the government makes no provision for compensation to the nurses who served during the war and besides being deprived of her health and the accomplishment of her desires in her chosen work, she is under the expense of her operations and sojourn at the hospital.

Attorney Flynn today received a letter from a Justice of the Peace in Shirley, Ark., inquiring if Mrs. Keller is an heir to Ernest Keller, who died suddenly there and left a considerable estate. Herman Keller, husband of the alleged poisoner, declared he knew of no relative who possessed a large estate.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF DAUGHTER

Sandusky, Jan. 19.—(UP.)—Crowds jammed common pleas court room here today to hear testimony in the trial of Mary Keller, charged with first degree murder in the death of her 7-year-old daughter Fay Elizabeth, whose body was found near a swamp in the eastern outskirts of the city Nov. 10.

Although police say Mrs. Keller admitted poisoning her child "to save her from a life of poverty like I have had," Attorney James F. Flynn, who volunteered to defend her, declared in court he will show she has the mental ity of a child and is not mentally capable of committing murder.

The state contends in the indictment that an ounce of acid was administered and the defense scored a point when the drug clerk who sold four ounces of poison to Mrs. Keller, identified the bottle and declared there is still more than three ounces in the bottle.

Wild Cereals

At one time or another all cereals, such as wheat, rice, and maize, were wild grasses, and many years of patient research have been necessary to develop their edible utility. There must be numerous grains of potential value growing throughout the world, but until the discovery of adlay no addition had been made to our existing supplies for centuries.

"BUFFALO BILL'S"

Prized Sparkler Proved To Be a Fake By Jeweler.

Loveland, Colorado, Jan. 19.—(UP.)—Weld county officials are today making a search for a six and one-half carat diamond, formerly owned by "Buffalo Bill" Cody, but now the property of the county, which, it was found yesterday, had been replaced by glass.

The stone was given to Cody by a European monarch. It was one of his prized possessions and adorned his favorite fetish.

With the death of the Indian fighter the jewel became the property of Cody Boal, a nephew. The gem was given a bank as collateral on a loan.

The doors of the bank closed two years ago. Since that time the diamond has reposed in the county vault.

Recently the county decided it had a claim to the jewel through failure of Boal to pay his taxes. Last Friday a Weld county court decided the gem should go to the county and yesterday a bailiff was sent to get it. When he took it to a jeweler he was informed that the rock in a handsome mounting, was "church window glass."

Assets of the bank go on sale today and it is possible there will be further disclosures concerning the noted stone.

OFFICE WASHINGTON USED AS SURVEYOR TO BE SAVED

Steps Taken to Preserve Hut He Used When Surveying Lands for Lord Fairfax.

Richmond, Va.—A neglected scene of George Washington's youthful labors is now coming in for its share of public attention. The little stone office in which he worked for Lord Fairfax will soon become a show spot of Clarke county, Va.

A hundred and seventy-seven years ago George Washington might have been found there any day, figuring busily and poring over outstretched charts and maps. In the neighborhood he made his first acquaintance, as a surveyor, with a country he was later to know as a soldier. Here he became accustomed to hardships and privations such as were to be his lot in the Revolutionary war. The little office is only some sixty miles or so from Washington, D. C. When the young surveyor worked there it was on a wild frontier.

Henry, Lord Fairfax, was once visiting his relative, William Fairfax, when George Washington was present. Lawrence Washington had married William Fairfax's daughter. The great man took a fancy to the boy, just past his seventeenth birthday. Finding in him abilities and attainments beyond his years, he engaged him to survey his vast tracts of land in the rich valley of the Alleghenies.

Washington set out in March, 1748, together with George William Fairfax; and, through Ashley's Gap in the Blue Ridge mountains, the western frontier of inhabited Virginia, they passed into the valley. In the wilderness near the Shenandoah river, about twelve miles from the present town of Winchester, they stopped at a lodge where Lord Fairfax's land bailiff, or steward, dwelt with as many negroes as were necessary to farm the newly cleared land.

This first arduous expedition lasted five weeks, with results of such satisfaction to Lord Fairfax that he himself moved across the Blue Ridge soon afterward, taking up his quarters at the lodge. He laid out a manor for the place, which he called Greenway Court, after his ancestral home in England; but the house was never built. The master himself slept in a wooden structure about twelve feet square. On the lawn near by he built a one-story office, where his deeds were drawn and his quit rents collected. There the boy Washington did his work.

The office had been left largely to the ravages of time and the elements in recent years. But repairs and restoration are now at hand.

A committee has been formed, of which Graham F. Blandy of New York is chairman, to collect funds for re-shingling the roof, relaying the floor, enclosing windows and door, replastering the inside and repainting the outside walls. By next spring, it is thought, all will be in readiness for visitors.

Greek and Latin

For many centuries Greek was the classic language in literature, until it was supplanted by Latin. The classic period of Latin literature lasted barely a hundred years. Between the year 100 B. C. and the beginning of the Christian era Cicero, Lucretius, Caesar, Horace, Virgil, Ovid and Livy all lived and wrote and passed away.

Egg and Poultry Societies Thrive

Coöperative Marketing Has Rapidly Developed in Past Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Co-operative marketing of eggs and poultry in the United States has undergone great development in the last 15 years. One hundred and eighty-three farmers' business organizations report handling eggs or poultry or both during 1924. They sold more than 70,000,000 dozens of eggs for approximately $22,000,000. Although only 31 of the 183 organizations were of the truly co-operative type, these 31 handled 90 per cent of the egg business.

Formerly practically all poultry products were sold on a flat price basis. Eggs brought the same price regardless of quality. Poultry, which was usually sold alive, was paid for on the pound basis with little regard to its age or condition. This method, besides offering no inducement to producers to improve the quality of their poultry and eggs, brought about seasonal gluts and shortages.

Improvement Made.

Great improvement was made when poultry producers in various parts of the country adopted co-operative methods of marketing eggs and poultry. These efforts, at first local and primitive, eventually became quite widespread and complex. Large-scale poultry and egg co-operatives have been successfully conducted for a number of years in the Pacific Coast states. Egg and poultry marketing has been organized co-operatively in many states. Considerable attention has been given in the last two or three years to the co-operative method of marketing poultry in Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Utah, Texas, New Mexico, Idaho, Alabama, Kentucky and Virginia. In Minnesota local associations are federated for selling purposes. Elsewhere most of the recently formed associations are of the centralized, nonstock, nonprofit type.

A survey in 1924 showed 31 egg and poultry marketing associations in producing regions and 4 at terminal markets. Twenty-two of them handled both eggs and poultry. Eight handled only eggs, and one handled only poultry. Missouri, with nine associations, was the state with the largest number; Minnesota was second, with six; California third, with four, and Texas fourth, with three. Five of 29 associations that gave the department information as to when they began operations, were organized before 1920, and the remainder since the beginning of that year.

Co-operative egg marketing was first developed by the present method on the Pacific coast. An association was formed in 1913 in Tulare county, California, with about 100 members. In its first year its sales exceeded $250,000. Last year its sales were nearly $400,000. Poultry producers of central California formed an organization in 1916, and this concern last year had 2,500,000 hens covered by its contracts. Its eggs are carefully graded and handled and are in good demand in Eastern markets. The Poultry Producers of Southern California, Inc., a co-operative organization formed in 1917, handled $7,553 cases of eggs in its first year. Last year it handled 139,000 cases. In 1917 the Washington Co-operative Egg and Poultry association was formed with headquarters at Seattle. This association now handles about 300,000 cases of eggs a year, and its net worth has increased from about $1,000 to $700,000.

Records of Progress.

Similar records of progress in co-operation are cited by the United States Department of Agriculture from information furnished by co-operative egg and poultry associations in most of the other states mentioned. Poultry producers in New Jersey, faced with competition from Pacific coast poultrymen in Eastern markets, formed an association in 1921 with 438 members. After some unfortunate experiences this concern was reorganized in 1923, and last year it handled approximately 70,000 cases of eggs.

Poultry and eggs have been marketed co-operatively in the last ten years through co-operative creameries in Minnesota. This plan is considered ideal for assembling eggs, although it has its limitations in merchandising. So as to develop a better selling organization, Minnesota poultry and egg producers put a plan in operation in 1923 which provided for district organizations federated in a state association. This association, on December 31 last, was selling products from 14,000 members.

Self-Feeders for Calf

Not Always Efficient

According to an experiment recently conducted by the dairy department of the South Dakota State college, Brookings, in regard to the efficiency of self-feeders for calves it was found that calves do not select their own rations to the best advantage—they eat too much of the protein feeds and keep themselves too fat. In another experiment as to the value of soy beans for dairy cattle, the results show that ground soy beans make a desirable feed because of their high protein content, but that soy bean hay is not as cheap a legume roughage in South Dakota as alfalfa hay, consequently soy bean hay is recommended as a feed only in localities where alfalfa and clover are not grown.

U. B. CHURCH NOTES.

After a week of special prayer, a series of meetings opened Sunday evening at the United Brethren church, under the leadership of the pastor, Rev. S. W. Hiles. He preached a wonderful sermon on the subject "Jesus Christ, Fact and Factor." Although the night was inclement those who braved the element were well repaid in the masterly picture that was drawn of the King of Kings.

Monday night, Rev. A. B. Cox, a former pastor, brought the message. It was the old-time gospel preached in the winning way that has made Rev. Cox many very warm friends in Circleville. Rev. S. W. Hiles preached again Tuesday night; "Jesus Came to See and Save the Lost," because God loved us so. Rev. W. L. Kuhen, of Pickerington, a Circleville boy, that is making good in the sacred calling of the ministry, was with us Monday and Tuesday and will be for several nights to come leading the music and helping whenever he is needed.

There will be meetings each evening this week excepting Saturday. Beginning Monday evening, January 25, Rev. Ludwig of Corning, will assist the pastor. Come out and hear the full gospel. Bring your unsaved friends and neighbors. Come and help Brother Kuhen put the message across in song. Come.

Vital Changes in Season's FashionsInnovations Which Cannot Be Disregarded Cited by Correspondent.

Timid negativism is the complex which seasonably distinguishes the chic from the not so chic. Semiannually it attacks each phase of the mode—couturier and critics and millady herself—and it is the saddest and most reactionary force in fashion. It is the quality which resists progress and attempts to translate radical changes into merely variations of old themes. When you read that the flare is merely a variation of the straight line, that the new elaboration is merely complicated simplicity, you are reading the timorous words of the pussyfooters whose negativistic comments turn daytime into darkness, asserts a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

There are seasons, of course, when the reactionaries ride high in their saddles, when the mode remains motionless, and static, when the silhouette changes not a bit and the waist line rests snugly satisfied with its former habitat or status. You may remember the monotonous iteration of youth, straight line and simplicity in the days when the quiescent meddles of the mode remained in a state of beatific somnolence. Those were the nurturing days of negativism, and they generated a reactionary attitude among the millions of fashion which still persists in many quarters no matter how strong the evidence of progress.

As a matter of fact the mode has completed and is now in process of consummating four vital changes and no woman who aspires to march with fashion's advance guard can afford to disregard any of them. First, the static line has been replaced by the flare—and do you remember the cautions of the standpatters last fall when the hemline flare was first introduced? That was a splendid example of the impending timidity to which we are referring.

Secondly, puerilism, misnamed youth eternal, has been banned from the ranks of the mature where it achieved some grotesque results during the several seasons of its dominance.

Simplicity 'Passes.

Thirdly, elaboration is now combating simplicity, which has been carried too far and continued too long and while no modern maiden will ever swish through the avenues accompanied by anything like the encumbrances of her Victorian forbears, there is, nevertheless, a distinct trend among the creative spirits of fashion toward greater decoration, particularly in the evening.

Fourthly, a counter move against the overextension of the sports vogue has just been inaugurated, and while you may hear from many sources that the sports mode is the essence of modern fashions, the handwriting on the wall is faint but unmistakably in contradiction. The sensitive leaders of the mode are headed in the direction of greater formality and the smart modern demoiselle will not continue to intrude the sports spirit into formal affairs.

Keep in mind this background when you select your new wardrobe. Inevitably you will see many models which incorporate the passing spirit as well as that which is about to come, and the selection, and your consequent degree of smartness, depend entirely upon your choice. Remember that the day of radical fashion changes is over—that the mode moves now in a subtle and more insidious manner and that it requires far more concentration to foresee and interpret its smartest moods. Where yesterday each new season sponsored a keynote that was easily apparent to all, the slower development of today's mode and the tremendous resistance to every new idea makes modern fashions extremely simple to follow but inordinately difficult to lead.

Among some of the interesting costumes which have already been accepted in Paris is a model contributed by Captain Molyneux, from which you may understand the tendency away from simplicity—consider the details and it will be quite obvious. Here is a dress of brick-red velvet with a collar and cuffs of metallic lace and sleeves which puff from the elbow. Around the nether portion of the flared skirt—which incidentally portrays the swinging silhouette—there are luxurious and ample bands of sable. And the lady carries a muff, a singularly feminine performance.

A Renee Ensemble.

A typical Renee ensemble is not overelaborate and yet it has none of that affected simplicity which characterized the era of the chemise frock. The flare is present but dormant and only becomes assertive when the wearer walks. The dress portion is developed in chestnut brown satin with cloth bands of the same color interspersed. Numerous buttons on sleeves and the front portion of the dress are covered with self-colored satin.

The coat portion of this ensemble is a decidedly more elaborate affair and it expresses the new themes of fashion in a bolder manner. Its flare is flaunting and its elaboration is smart and uncompromising. Compared with the mannish coats one will immediately sense its chic distinction. Developed in brown mixed kasha, it has a luxurious beaver collar, beaver cuffs and sleeve trimming as well as a circular beaver border.

A Chantal model emphasizes the distinctive qualities of the new season. Developed in mustard yellow crepe de chine of the heaviest quality, it is a splendid transition model for the girl who is still faithful to the sports tradition. The skirt flares moderately at the bottom, the waistline is marked and the sleeves puff from the elbow to right before the wrist. The embroidery which appears at the bateau neckline and reappears on shoulders, sleeves, waistline, bodice closing, and around the skirt consists of interlocking rings of the same color as the frock. A dress of this type should be worn over a white slip.

Built-in Elaboration.

The definite formality of the mode du soir is expressed in a Poiret dinner gown. There is an instance of built-in elaboration as distinguished from the elaboration which is imposed by means of trimming and various other appendages. Built-in elaboration is obviously a step in advance of the imposed sort, and it evidences the fact that the evening mode has almost recovered its ancient ornateness. No doubt the Paris Exposition des Arts Decoratifs had a great influence on the new mode, and you will see many instances of its effect in autumn fashions. A Poiret model is developed in black velvet and has an "ancient regime" bustle back formed by huge draperies of velvet which are held in place by diamante crescents. Diamante and pearl bands sound the solitary trimming note.

Have in mind the fledgling themes of fall when you proceed to acquire your costumes and do not be misled by any timorous comments to the effect that the new styles are no different from the old. They are fuller, more feminine and always more ornate, and the chic demoiselle is the lady who will not make concessions on any of these new issues. For smartness is never achieved through compromise.

As usual, Worth's coats and wraps are particularly interesting. He shows them long, three-quarter and semi-three-quarter length and either straight or circular. Some of those which show the newest cut have a godet inlet under the arm that widens in a circular movement as it nears the hem, giving a graceful fullness to the skirt. Satin, cloth, kasha, cheviot, burayl and suede are used for these coats and most of them are trimmed with fur. The ensemble plays an important part in this, as in other collections, but the separate wraps are quite as beautiful and practical.

MADRID IS HUB
OF MODERN SPAINNow Up-to-Date With Little of Traditional Spanish Flavor.

Washington. — A bloodless revolution in Spain! Madrid has just witnessed the passing of the military directorate of the last two years, its replacement by the civilian government, and all with the calmness and dispatch of an American business concern recovering from a receivership. "Madrid is, however, a thoroughly modern city, with very little of the traditional flavor of old Spain and with nearly all the luxuries and conveniences of other European and American capitals," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "With a background of fine buildings, wide streets, theaters, educational and scientific institutions, and with automobile roads and railways reaching to every part of the kingdom, it is easier to understand why Madrid should today follow a moderate course in governmental procedure.

Subways and Boulevards.

"Visitors who go by the fast direct trains from Paris to Madrid, and expect to see the colorful costumes and striking architecture one usually associates with the life of the country, are disappointed in Spain's capital city. Madrid's streets swarm with motor trucks and pleasure cars. Underground are two systems of speedy subways, connecting the railroad stations and the principal suburbs of the city. Its boulevards resemble those of Paris and Berlin, with their bordering trees and imposing hotels, public buildings, shops and monuments.

"In place of the poncho and sombrero the visitor will find the tailored suit and straw hat of a bustling business man of the New York stamp. The latest Paris creations make it difficult to distinguish the Spanish senora and senorita from their Latin sisters in Paris, Rome, Havana and Buenos Aires. The languorous strumming of the guitar and the click of the castanets, if they could be found off the stage in Madrid, would today be drowned by the incessant 'whank, whank' of its importunate taxis.

"Madrid is the youngest of the great cities of Spain. It owes its present importance to political creation. Until the middle of the Sixteenth century it was an obscure little village of sun-baked adobe houses, clustering around the former Moorish outpost called Madrit. Philip II, seeking at this time a capital for his newly united Spain, rejected one by one the Aragonese city of Saragossa, the Castilian Burgos, the Visigothic Toledo and the Moorish Cordova and Seville. Madrit was in the almost exact geographic center of the kingdom, it had no sectional ties, so Philip declared it the 'Unica Corte,' or Royal Residence, Castilianizing its name to Madrid.

"With hardly any of the natural advantages that contribute to rapid growth, Madrid's early days as a capital were as troublous and uncertain as those of our own national capital. Excepting its central location Madrid was denied by nature of almost every suitable condition for a metropolis. It perched on an elevated steppe in the midst of a vast rolling plateau, bleak and treeless, about a half mile above sea level. Two hundred feet below it winds the insignificant river Manzanares, while the surrounding districts are unproductive, except for small quantities of corn.

"Another element to be reckoned with in Madrid is the climate. Sudden changes of weather often bring great extremes of temperature within a short time.

"The city grew slowly but steadily, stimulated by royal encouragement and subsidy, and gradually began to take a significant part in the life of Spain outside the realm of governmental activities. Madrid's real prosperity and national importance, however, dates from the construction of Spain's railroad systems. It is now the greatest railroad center in the country, and would probably figure as a greater international crossroad if the Spanish lines had the same gauges as those of the rest of Europe.

Spain's Largest City.

"Wealth, industries, and population have come in the wake of the railroads. Madrid, with more than 800,000 residents, is the largest city in Spain. Fine parks have been laid out over barren hills, wide tree-lined streets have pushed into the suburbs to take care of additional homes and buildings. They have done a great deal to take away the impression of barrenness. Some say they have even mitigated the heat of summer.

"From the Puerta del Sol, the Broadway and Forty-second street of Madrid, ten streets radiate, carrying a network of surface and subway lines to every part of the city. Less than half a mile away is the 'Prado,' a boulevard lined with fine buildings, and from five to eight rows of trees. Along this promenade, which is one of the 'show streets' of the world, is the museum of the same name, containing a collection of art which rivals that of the Louvre.

"Madrid also has one of the largest bull rings in the world. Its 'Plaza de Toros,' modeled after the Roman colosseum, seats 14,000 people. Bullfighting, however, has fallen from its high estate in Spain today, and spectators are, for the most part, the sporting element and American tourists."

SPORT WITH A TRAVELING HUNTING LODGE

The ancient bus shown above arrived in Boston the other day after having traveled more than 4,000 miles in 1 month 21 days. It is a combination hunting lodge and traveling home owned by (left to right) E. P. Dupre and Ernest Wintergreen of Glen Cove, L. I. The two buck deer on the fenders were shot in Jackman, Maine.

USE OF DIMMER IS NOT FAVORED

Motor Code to Provide 200-Foot Visibility Is Urged by Bureau.

Amendments to motor-vehicle laws, in states which have not already revised their codes, to regulate night driving headlights so that at all times the motorist is able to see clearly 200 feet ahead instead of forcing the use of dimmers, characterized as dangerous, is urged by the federal bureau of standards of the Department of Commerce. Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan fall into the group of states that compel dimmed lights by passing motorists on highways, a practice which the bureau scientists condemn as dangerous, not alone to the drivers but to pedestrians as well.

Spotlight Is Favored.

The spotlight, excoriated in and around Chicago, is recommended, with proper study of its use. Most of the eastern states, as well as states west of Illinois, including Wisconsin, have adopted this apparently revolutionary headlight recommendation. In the District of Columbia where it has been in effect since May 3, night motor accidents have been materially reduced. Prior to May 3 57 per cent of the total accidents occurred between dusk and dawn. Since adoption of the "ample driving light" standard, with directed beams instead of dimmed lamps, the number has been reduced to 23 per cent.

Opposes Dimming in Country.

The whole story, according to E. C. Crittenden, chief of the electrical division of the big government experiment station, lies in intelligent use of modern devices. He makes no choice between various makes of motor headlights now on the market, one type of which uses a plane reflector with redirecting lenses, the other employing a special reflector with lenses that spread or bend the light rays downward.

"For country driving," says a part of the bureau's publication on headlights, "dimming the headlights when meeting another car should be discouraged because of the element of danger involved. Under normal driving conditions the driver's eyes are adjusted for good road illumination. When the lights are dimmed, suddenly reducing the road light, a few seconds must elapse before the eyes can readjust themselves to the new conditions. During these few seconds the driver is unable to see clearly and may collide with the oncoming car, run into pedestrians walking along the roadside or get off the road into the ditch. In addition, the lights on the approaching car seem unduly bright because no road illumination beyond them is available to reduce the contrast with the background."

How to Warm Up a Motor During Winter Season

"Serious damage is done to many automobiles during the winter season by drivers who do not know how to warm up the motor," says a bulletin issued by the mechanical first aid department of the Chicago Motor club. When the thermometer starts to drop the oil coagulates, and cannot circulate properly. If the driver attempts to warm his engine by racing the motor, the thin film of oil is likely to be burned off, and burned out bearings may be the result of this common practice.

"When the engine is being raced, the fan is being driven at a high rate of speed which tends to cool the engine, rather than to heat it. The engine should be run slowly with the park retarded. A retarded spark tends to heat the engine quickly. Use the choke or the primer to keep the engine from stalling."

Several Reasons Why It Is Expensive to Speed

The driver who persists in operating his motor car at high speed may elude constables and police, says a writer in the Farm and Fireside, but he cannot escape from the penalties which natural mechanical laws levy upon his car. Here are ten reasons why it is expensive, dangerous and inconsiderate of others to speed.

Tires last about twice as long on a car that is driven at 15 miles an hour as upon cars driven at 30 miles an hour. Speeding generates heat, which is an enemy to rubber.

Driving a car around a sharp corner at 25 miles an hour does more damage to the tires than 200 miles of straight road work. Excessive side pressure on tires may pinch the tubes, and it always strains the side walls of the casings.

High speeds are likely to cause skidding and breakage of springs and steering gear, any of which are dangerous when speeding.

In proportion to the mileage obtained, high speeds require more gasoline and oil than a moderate rate of traveling.

Driving a car at excessive speed, especially over rough roads, subjects the bearings to enormous strains.

High speed may cause crystallization of rapidly moving metal parts that are subject to strain, and these may break at any time without warning.

High speeds interfere with the accuracy of steering, as is shown by the number of reckless drivers who have gone over banks and into ditches, especially on curves.

It is a strain on the eyes and the nerves of the driver and also of the other passengers in the car.

Finally, it is a menace to the pleasure and safety of others who use the road.

The majority of modern motor cars develop their maximum efficiency with lowest expense at speeds ranging from 15 to 25 miles an hour, depending on the make of car and conditions of the road.

Shutters on Radiators Kept Closed Too Long

The most important precaution to take in operating a motor car during the winter is to avoid loss of fuel and injury to the engine through the improper co-ordination between the radiator shutter and the radiator heat indicator.

Many drivers keep their shutters closed too long in winter driving because they neglect to observe the reading of the heat indicator on the radiator cap. This lack of co-ordination causes overheating of the engine, as easily possible in the winter as in the summer months, with its consequent wastage of fuel and loss of fuel and loss of power.

On the other hand, if too little of the radiator is covered, the engine will be too cool and there will be resultant poor carburization, gasoline waste, crankcase dilution and motor carbonizing.

Steaming, which often indicates trouble in summer, cannot be detected easily in winter, as the steam condenses as soon as it comes in contact with the cold air and therefore the readings of the heat indicator must be relied upon.

Headlight Glasses Must Be Kept in Right Place

Some of the light diffusers or devices designed to redirect the rays of light, are designed to be effective only when in a certain fixed position. Vibration may so loosen the glass in the rim that the glass will be permitted to creep around, in which case the whole scheme fails. Not all headlights have means for anchoring the glass permanently, so it is a matter for the owner's attention to see that the glasses are properly fastened in place. If screws are used it might do to insert a lock washer under each one.

GREAT BOOKS.

A series of talks being given by one of Circleville's ministers at his Sunday evening services during January should certainly inspire Circleville readers to read or reread some of these great novels. So much criticism is expressed nowadays for the types of books being published that it should be a joy to turn to those books, which have proved so much worth while to generations of readers, as well as to one quite recent novel, which has been chosen to stand with the other older volumes.

So far, the talks given have been on "Les Miserable" "The Resurrection," "The Scarlet Letter," with "The Mill on the Floss" and "So Big" to come later.

BANK ELECTION.

At the annual meeting of the Farmers National bank stockholders held January 12, the following were elected directors: F. D. Alkire, H. W. Campbell, George Hamman, C. W. Hays, G. P. Hunsicker, C. K. Hunsicker, L. J. Hurst, H. G. McGhee, E. C. Rector, Frank Schleich, John W. Stewart and Charles D. Wright.

The following were reelected officers: G. P. Hunsicker, president; H. G. McGhee, vice president; Formen J. Peck, cashier; J. L. Hunsicker, assistant cashier and Mrs. Edna Newhouse, bookkeeper.

This is the thirty-fifth year as a banker for G. P. Hunsicker. He started as cashier of the Farmers bank, on December 22, 1891. — Williamsport News.

"NOISE IT ABROAD"

Brought to attention by the visit of the Rev. Mr. J. S. Bitler, after an absence of over forty years, a book written by a former minister of Circleville has "stepped out" from its place on the shelves of the Circleville Public library. This book is "Noise It Abroad" by Rev. C. F. Creighton and is an account of the great Bitler revival held in Circleville in 1885. Probably there are many copies of this book in the home of our town and it supplies an interesting contribution to the material on the times and events, which have gone to make up our local history.

PNEUMONIA DEATH RATE CUT DOWN

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN Editor of "HEALTH"

PNEUMONIA is one of the commonest and most fatal diseases. It is also the most important disease in the so-called "Respiratory Group" which, so far, modern science has been unable to prevent.

While pneumonia is more prevalent in the early spring and late fall, it occurs practically all the year round, in rural districts, in small towns, and large cities. It is particularly prevalent in old age; in fact, some medical authorities say that pneumonia is the natural termination of the life of the old person.

Those diseases caused by polluted water, such as cholera, typhoid fever and dysentery, and those carried by insects, such as yellow fever, typhus fever and malaria, have been very largely controlled. But the respiratory group, including pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza, and probably some forms of meningitis, is, so far as our present knowledge and methods go, beyond control.

If a disease cannot be prevented, the next best thing is to cure it as quickly and completely as possible. But here again difficulties arise.

Many different forms of serums and vaccines for the treatment of pneumonia have been proposed in the last twenty years. None of them has given satisfactory results. The New York City Health department, however, has announced the perfection of a new substance for the treatment of pneumonia which, it is hoped, will cut the death rate from 25 to 50 per cent.

This substance was discovered by Dr. Lloyd D. Felton of the department of preventive medicine of Harvard Medical school. It is a white, crystalline powder which Doctor Felton extracted from ordinary horse serum which has been used quite widely in the past in the treatment of influenza. It has been used in the treatment of 120 pneumonia patients without the slightest unfavorable effect. It is apparently free from the substances in other serums which sometimes cause chills, fever and other bodily manifestations.

The discovery of this substance is the result of five years of research and experimental work, inaugurated by Doctor Felton with the support of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company after the widespread influenza epidemic of 1918.

It is, of course, too early to make any definite statements regarding the value of this discovery, but the conditions under which the substance has been produced, the long period devoted to experimental work, and the results secured by the Boston and New York City Health departments all lead to the hope that it may prove an effective addition to present methods of treating pneumonia and to the reduction of the high mortality rate which has always prevailed in this disease. HARTMAN THEATER.

Hailed as one of the best musical revues ever assembled, the new edition of "Artists and Models" opens a week's engagement at the Hartman theater Columbus, Monday night, January 25. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

This marks the booking of this famous Shubert Revue in Columbus. It ran all last season in New York.

The list of stars reads like a page from "Who's Who in Revue." Among the entertainers are Grace Haves, the quivering angel of jazz songs; Fred Hillebrand, the lanky comedian; Nancy Gibb, the prima donna; Lucita Covera, the Spanish dancer and Dave Seed, the monkey comic.

DeHaven and Nice add a riot of laughs with their travesty dancing. Frank Gaby steps into the spotlight with his ventriloquist bit and Alex Morrison contributes a novelty with his golf scene. Valadia Vestoff appears in eccentric Russian dances.

Fifty beautiful artists' models reveal their charms in the posing scenes and musical numbers. Those girls were recruited from the foremost studios of Greenwich Village and the collection includes blondes, brunettes, ravens and Titians. In the episodes of "The Living Statues" and "The Living Palette," they wear "elephant's breath" chiffon, a new stage fabric so light in weight that the entire costume is carried in a silver vanity case.

Scenic features of "Artists and Models" include the Promenade walk, the Midnight Color Ball, the rose ballet the New Hampshire wood, and a comedy skit entitled "Truth in China."

The music is by Sigmund Romberg, Al Goodman and Maurie Rubens. Some of the song hits are "You Ought to Know," "My Lady's Fan," "Oh, Boy What a Girl," "Good Night" and "Follow Your Star."

LIABILITY INSURANCE

What It Is and the Benefits That Accrue to the Policy Holders.

I wonder if you realize that every car owner is responsible to the public for the operation of his car, whether he drives it himself or allows others to drive it.

PUBLIC LIABILITY is an insurance term indicating the responsibility the car owner is under for injuries or death inflicted on persons thru the operation of his car.

It is most important of all automobile insurance features, owing to the unknown possibilities of the claims.

Some of the factors making accidents and consequent liability claims daily more numerous, and the owner's risk in operating a car an ever increasing one, are:

CONGESTION OF TRAFFIC. Roads are about the same width as formerly, yet traffic thereon has greatly increased. Between fifteen and twenty million motor vehicles are registered in the United States today. This vast number is being increased daily.

LOW PRICES OF SECOND-HAND CARS have added greatly to the number of irresponsible drivers, who menace all other users of the roads. The careless, fast driver is often the sufferer from the faults of others.

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS are a constant temptation to speedsters and encourage less careful attention on the part of all drivers.

THE CHILDREN MUST PLAY, and there being very little yard space around the average city home, the playing is done in the path of the motorists. The heavy tolls of 1924 in life, injuries and property losses have been given wide publicity in the press of the country.

AMBULANCE-CHASING LAWYERS (and there is one or more in every city) make a business of creating cases against any car owner involved in an accident, whether or not it is serious, whether or not he is liable and particularly if he has property.

COURT CHARGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES MUST BE PAID, and eventually, possibly a heavy judgment to be paid with interest and costs. The feelings, sympathies and judgments of juries are generally in favor of the injured and against the car owner. Verdicts for injuries or death run into thousands of dollars, and are larger than ever before. Even if you win, your expenses mount to a large figure.

An automobile liability insurance guarantees the investigation of claims whether you are liable or not, adjusts, pays, fights your case if necessary, pays expenses, lawyer's fees and court costs, relieves you from responsibility and worry. It does all of this for the owner and for any one legally operating the car with the owner's permission.

If you are now carrying liability insurance, the above facts will serve to strengthen the conviction that led you to protect yourself.

This information, coupled with the fact that last year no fewer than twenty-eight states introduced bills for compulsory liability insurance, is conclusive evidence of the advisability of every car owner relieving himself of personal liability.

Handsome Designs in Party Dresses

Velvet and Metal Laces Are Likely to Predominate
This Season.

As a rule it is difficult to find just the right party dress for the girl in her teens, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times. Our choice seems to lie between a simple affair, which is practically a glorified "junior" dress, or a model which is old enough to be worn by a matron. This season marks a step of improvement in party dresses for the girl, and there are several very good models. The simple chiffons in pastel shades or in bright or in white are always acceptable, but there is a new dress that will charm both mother and daughter. This is useful, yet has some qualities that are seen in the older dresses. It is made with the inevitable tight bodice and full skirt. The foundation is two layers of different tone chiffon. The dress is made of large mesh silk net in color to match one of the underdress layers. This net is embroidered in fine wool design outlined by a metallic thread. It is especially effective in tones of red browns with gold thread, or blue greens with silver. It has the dignity and formality of a matron's dress, thereby finding favor in the eyes of the youngster who loves to imitate her elders, and at the same time it is youthful enough to satisfy the most critical person. Plain soft velvet dresses are a new note for the young girl, and if properly chosen they are very effective.

Each year there is a fabric that claims general popularity. Last season it was kasha in endless variety. This autumn it is to be velvet. We already have evidence of this in shop windows, and while so far only tailored models have appeared, we hear that some wonderful new formal frocks will soon be shown in velvet. Velvet for evening wear never entirely goes out of fashion, but this year there will be a race for popularity in evening dresses between velvet and the metal laces. These materials are even being combined. One very interesting evening dress is made on conventional lines in gold lace. Its only trimming consists of big flat black velvet flowers, appliqued at the waist and the bottom of the flounce in enormous bold designs.

Slight girls look grotesque in the heavy Spanish shawls, but there is no wrap so becoming to girlhood as a shawl. Some of the newer ones are lighter and smaller than formerly, and they can be had at very reasonable prices. Every school trunk should contain some wrap of this sort. One of the most effective is of Italian origin. Another good design hails from the Balkans and is in very bright, bold colorings.

Brown Beaver Chapeau Is Without Trimming

For fall wear, the brown beaver hat, without trimming—but for a simple pearl pin—is regarded as very stylish. Autumn hats, according to the milliners, are smarter than the styles of the past spring.

Turban That Is Adapted to Tailored Costumes

The close little turban which is so admirably adapted to costumes of tailored aspect appears in a new guise, with maroon velvet for a model, with a cuff brim and sectional crown both stitched diagonally in silk of the same shade.

Paris is said to regard with considerable favor a soft shade of gray blue which is particularly becoming in hats of velvet. One milliner has chosen this shade for an attractive hat cleverly draped to one side with this line accentuated by a fantasia of glycerine ostrich.

From this same house comes another model with a round, fairly high crown, and brim turned up a bit both front and back. This is made of brown velvet with an ostrich fantasia at the back in shades of brown and beige.

Girls Held in Slavery in Philippine Province

Manila.—Girls are reported being held in servitude for from one to seven years in Occidental Negros province under conditions amounting to slavery. A statement from the governor general's office said that constabulary officials had reported uncovering a series of illegal detention cases.

The information says that at a plantation near Isabella a number of girls have been held in compulsory service without payment. Nominally, the girls were bond servants, amounts from $27 to $75 having been lent usually to parents. These amounts were charged to the girls, who after several years of service were still in debt.

At one plantation, the report says, the girls suffered from habitual cruel treatment at the hands of their mistress.

Charges of illegal detention and homicide have been filed against persons involved.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardi, the well known Expert from Chicago, will personally be at the Warner Hotel, Chillicothe, Ohio, on Saturday only, January 23d.

Mr. Meinhardi says "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" will not only hold the Rupture perfectly, but will contract the opening in ten days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size and location of the Rupture.

WARNING:—Every ruptured person should be cautioned against wearing trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the lump and not on the rupture opening. This often causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death. Therefore, do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old-style trusses with understraps. "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" has no understraps, no straps around the body or legs. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible, and should be worn while bathing. Mr. Meinhardi will be pleased to demonstrate "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" to all gentlemen who call at this Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Only gentlemen are invited to call on the above date as a special visit will be made here at a later date for women and children.

Notice:—Do not write asking to be fitted by mail as this is impossible. Every case must be seen personally. If interested you must call at this hotel on the above date. Business demands prevent stopping at any other city in this section. Home office: 3935 W. North Ave., Chicago, Ill. 14janyw1;20janyd1.

JOHN DUVAL DODGE

Lost His Suit For Share of Large Estate.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—John Duval Dodge, estranged son of the late John Dodge, automobile magnate, today lost his suit for a share in the $7,500,000 estate of his half-sister, Ann Margaret Dodge.

By ruling of Probate Judge Henry S. Hulbert, young Dodge was granted only a one-fifth interest in real estate holdings, or approximately $1,276. His contested right to share in personal property valued at more than $7,500,000 was denied, Judge Hulbert holding it should pass to Matilda R. Wilson, his step-mother.

In the will of John F. Dodge, his son was cut off with $150 a month but under a compromise agreement he later was given $1,600,000 by other heirs in return for relinquishing claims against the estate.

Lesson for January 24

JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

LESSON TEXT—John 4:4-42.
GOLDEN TEXT—With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation.—Isa. 12:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus by the Well.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus by Jacob's Well.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Sinful Woman Finds the Savior.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Jesus Deals With Sinners.

I. Jesus Must Needs Go Through Samaria (vv. 4-6).

The growing popularity of Jesus aroused the envious opposition of the Pharisees, which obliged Him to leave Judea and go into Samaria. There was another way to reach Galilee, one used by many Jews to avoid contact with the despised Samaritans, on the eastern side of the Jordan. He must "needs go through Samaria" in order to find this poor sinful woman and the needy citizens of Sychar. The great necessity which was upon Him was to seek and to save that which was lost (Luke 19:24).

II. Jesus' Testimony to the Woman (vv. 7-26).

This is a fine example of personal evangelism.

1. A Favor Asked (vv. 7-9).

Jesus tactfully made a request which appealed to the woman's sympathy. Not only did the thirst of the weary traveler appeal to her, but the fact that He being a Jew asked a favor of her, showed His sympathy for her. In introducing the conversation, He referred to that which was uppermost in her mind, namely, water. This was the teacher's point of contact. He soon passed from earthly water to the water of everlasting life which was in Himself. Every human mind has a handle. Our success as Christian workers depends upon our ability to grasp and use it.

2. Jesus' Tender Dealing With This Woman (vv. 10-15).

He first appealed to her curiosity by declaring, "If thou knewest the gift of God" (v. 10). He knew the deep unrest of the soul of the sinful woman as she went on her way. He knew if she really knew Him she would believe on Him and be saved from her sins, therefore the first thing was to get attention. When we can get one to give attention to the claims of Christ, there is good chance of winning him. He followed this appeal to her curiosity by a promise which directed her attention to her deepest needs. There is a consciousness of deep need in every soul. The deepest need of a soul Jesus only can satisfy.

3. The Woman, Convicted of Her Sins (vv. 15-19).

Jesus succeeded in arousing her interest, but she did not really understand Him. Before she could understand what the Water of Life is, she must be convicted of her sin. She did not agree with Him, but became a humble inquirer. The soul must be convicted of sin before it can be converted.

4. The Problem of Worship Submitted to Christ (vv. 20-24).

This she did as soon as she perceived Him to be a prophet. Jesus knowing the inner life of this woman, told her of the glad time even then present when true worshippers could hold intercourse with God anywhere. He showed her that the place of worship is unimportant, that the all-important thing is to have the true conception of God as brought through the Jews. Since worship is spiritual, only those who have been regenerated can worship God in spirit.

5. The Woman of Samaria Witnessing for Christ (vv. 27-30).

The woman left her water pot and returning to the city said, "Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did. Is not this the Christ?" As soon as she was converted she became an enthusiastic missionary. This is as it ought to be and always will be. The soul that realizes Jesus cannot be silent (John 1:41-45). The result of her testimony was that many believed on Jesus.

III. Jesus Testifying to the Citizens of Sychar (vv. 40, 41).

The woman's testimony brought the request from the Samaritans that Jesus tarry with them. He abode with them two days. Though they heard the woman's testimony, they believed because of Christ's own word (v. 41).

IV. The Samaritans Witnessing for Christ (v. 42).

They declared, "We know that this is indeed the Christ, the Savior of the world." They confessed to the woman that their belief was not due to her testimony but to having heard Him themselves, that they were sure that He was the Messiah.

HE HAD been out in the slush. His shoes were wet. He put his feet on the rim of the stove. It wasn't very hot, but wet leather parches easily, so he ruined a good pair of "Star Brand" shoes and didn't know it.

We're proud of our "Star Brand" shoes. They're made up to a high standard of quality, from the finest grades of solid leather.

MONDAY CLUB MEETING WAS INTERESTING

Mrs. Carl Ritz Gave Review
of George Bernard Shaw's
Drama, "Saint Joan."

One of the best meetings ever held by the Monday club in its thirty-five years of existence was that of Monday night, January 18. The program was short, there being only one topic discussed. This was a review of George Bernard Shaw's remarkable drama, "Saint Joan," which was ably taken up by Mrs. Carl Ritz. Mrs. Ritz introduced the study by giving briefly a thoughtful critique of Shaw's motives and methods in writing the play and stated that she believed the author had been honest in his endeavor to portray the character of the Maid of Orleans as he saw it. Mrs. Ritz brought to the task of the interpretation of the drama a scholarly mind, a trained voice and a thoro knowledge of dramatic values in literature. After dipping into Shaw's ninety-seven page preface, she read some of the most effective portions of play itself. And while her audience may or may not have been in sympathy with Shaw's conception of the historic character, Joan of Arc, judging from the rapt attention paid the reading there could be no question as to the unanimous approval of the club regarding the masterly interpretation of the play by Mrs. Ritz.

At the close of the program the club went into a prolonged business session. A number of questions pertaining to club activities were taken up, among them the coming year's work. After this had been discussed at some length, the proposed new code of by-laws was voted on, being presented, section by section by Mrs. C. E. Groce, chairman of the committee having in charge the revision of the constitution and by-laws.

"THE ROSE MAIDEN"

A very interesting crowd of local artists met at the community house of the U. B. church Wednesday evening and took part in the first rehearsal of "Rose Maiden," the cantata the Business & Professional Women's club is sponsoring and which Mrs. Winters, of Portsmouth, a very charming and accomplished woman, is directing.

The next rehearsal will be held at the community house Friday evening and it is asked that all those consenting to sing in the cantata will find it possible to be present at that time.

Poor Man's Luck

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

CONGREVE looked at the revolver in his desk drawer and pushed it away with a little laugh. Not that way for him! He was only forty-three, and the millions that he had lost in the last week he could make again, and more.

But he could not regain Virginia Templeton. He knew that she was lost forever, and a month before their wedding.

That was the cursed part of the luck, he thought, as he made his way out in the train toward the Templeton estate. Old Templeton had been in a bad way when, out of friendship, Congreve had taken hold of his affairs, showed him some wise investments, and rebuilt his affairs for him.

Templeton had invited him to his fine home in the country, and there Congreve had met Virginia.

There had been a host of men after her—young Winters especially. Congreve had always suspected that Virginia was in love with Winters. Certainly he admitted to himself that Virginia had never really cared for him. She was marrying him because—well, not for his money, but because he had saved her father from bankruptcy.

After all, Congreve reflected cynically, one got nothing for nothing in this world. He wanted Virginia, with her cold, stately beauty. She wanted to do the right thing. Oh, yes, he was the right thing.

He had been sure that young Winters had kissed her that night in the conservatory. He had said nothing about it. Why should he? He had all the tolerance of a man of forty-three who is about to marry a charming girl. Suppose she did not care for Winters? How long would it last?

But now—as he descended at the station—now it was all different. Now he clenched his fists and gritted his teeth as he reflected how Winters would get her after all. How they would laugh at him, all her friends who had never really admitted him into their circle!

And old Templeton—how rejoiced he would be to kick down the ladder by which he had ascended to those heights of financial salvation!

Congreve strode savagely up the lane toward the house. He was going to make no bones about the matter. He meant to come to the point. "I'm all but bankrupt," he was going to tell Templeton. To Virginia—well, he would not be harsh with the girl. One did not take it out on women. A few words, showing her that he understood.

It was beginning to grow dark as the house came into sight. Congreve, about to ascend the steps and knock at the front door, hesitated. There was a light in the little room at the side. In it he saw Virginia's figure silhouetted against the drawn shade. The window was open. Congreve could hear every word uttered by her and the man with her.

"It's true, Virgy," the man was saying—and it was Winters' voice. "The fellow's a bankrupt. The news is all over town. Now we've got him where we want him."

"Where do we want him?" asked Virginia.

"Somewhere where he can't interfere between you and me, sweetheart."

"Aren't you assuming too much?"

"I guess not." He made a little movement toward her. The girl stepped back.

"Listen, Ronald. Ever since Harry and I became engaged you and everybody assumed that I was marrying him for his money. It wasn't said aloud—oh, no, but the sense was conveyed none the less deftly for all that. It paralyzed me. It made an automaton of me. Because you see, I—love him."

"Nonsense, Virgy!"

"I love him. And now that all his money is gone, perhaps I shall have the chance of showing him that it was he himself and not his money, and that I do care for him."

"And as for you, Ronald, I don't want to see you again. Please go. That's all."

As Congreve stood there agast the door opened and Winters brushed past him with an agitated face. But Congreve hardly noticed him. There stood Virginia. And one glance at his face told her he had overheard.

"Yes, I heard you, Virginia," said Congreve. And he drew her into his arms.

"I guess the loss of my money was the best thing that could have happened to us. It's given us love," he said.

"The love was always there," said Virgy softly.

Colon Gone Wrong

A teacher of English was sorely afflicted with conditions that seemed to mean a surgical operation. One examination after another, with the X-ray liberally applied, finally disclosed the source of the pain.

"You have no disease in your appendix," said her medical advisor. "nor elsewhere that I can discover, except in your colon."

"Dear me!" she exclaimed. "Here I have been wrestling all my life with commas and periods and semicolons only to be told, at my age, that my colon has gone wrong."
